Dear Public Official:

This fourth edition of my Office's procurement manual reflects major legislative changes to Chapter 30B that were enacted and signed into law in July 2000. My Office initially drafted and filed a bill containing these changes in close collaboration with officials of statewide public procurement associations and the thousands of local officials with whom we keep in contact through our various technical assistance programs.

The effect of these changes is to promote best value contracting by streamlining and fine-tuning the provisions of Chapter 30B. For example, the dollar thresholds in the law governing use of quotations, advertised competition, and sole-source procurements have been boosted substantially, thereby allowing procurement officials to devote their attention and resources to larger, more complex transactions. In addition, awarding authorities now have more flexibility to increase the amount of supplies and services purchased under a Chapter 30B contract. Overall, these reforms will assist local jurisdictions in using Chapter 30B to obtain the goods and services they require to fulfill their public missions.

This manual is one component of my Office's efforts to prevent fraud, waste, and abuse by providing technical assistance to public officials. My Office also advises local officials on procurement issues, expeditiously handles bid protests by telephone, publishes and widely distributes the quarterly Procurement Bulletin, and conducts our nationally recognized Massachusetts Certified Public Purchasing Official (MCPPO) program. The MCPPO program, created in 1997, now offers a series of three-day certification seminars as well as continuing education seminars and a half-day seminar devoted to bidding basics and contract administration. I am proud that in 1999 alone, my Office awarded MCPPO designations to 207 procurement officials around the state. I encourage you to call my Office for more information on the MCPPO program or visit our website at www.state.ma.us/ig.

As always, I welcome your suggestions on ways in which we can better serve the needs of the public purchasing community.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Cerasoli
Inspector General

CHAPTER 1

Introduction

Chapter 30B of the Massachusetts General Laws, the Uniform Procurement Act, establishes uniform procedures for local governments to use when contracting for supplies, equipment, services, and real property. Approximately 1,500 local governmental jurisdictions in Massachusetts (cities, towns, counties, districts, regional school districts, and local authorities, including housing and redevelopment authorities) follow the procedures to award contracts worth billions of dollars each year.

The law resulted from collaboration among the Office of the Inspector General, the Massachusetts Association of Public Purchasing Officials, the Massachusetts Association of School Business Officials, and the City Solicitors and Town Counsel Association, and other local officials to adapt the American Bar Association's Model Procurement Code to reflect specific Massachusetts practice and case law. Chapter 30B, as originally enacted, updated provisions of the prior law. For example, it increased the advertising threshold for supply contracts, streamlined procedures for smaller contracts, and eliminated restrictions on authority to contract and the duration of many contracts.¹ It also provided for competition for service contracts.

The contracting procedures in Chapter 30B are based on three premises:

1. Larger contracts should receive more attention than smaller contracts. Chapter 30B cut the unnecessary red tape surrounding smaller purchases to enable local governments to devote resources to larger contracts.
2. Fair, robust competition for larger procurements saves money and promotes integrity and public confidence in government.
3. Uniform contracting procedures promote competition and fairness. Chapter 30B clarified and demystified local contracting for vendors competing for contracts and for citizens observing the process.

The result is that public agencies operating under Chapter 30B have the tools and authority to make best value procurements. You decide what quality of supplies and services you need and what factors to consider in making an award, and you ensure that you contract only with responsible vendors who have the integrity, capability, and reliability to do the work.

After its enactment in January 1990, many local governments quickly demonstrated the benefits of the new law by substantially cutting costs and raising revenue using the procedures to award service contracts. Examples of savings and revenues achieved within the first two years of the law's implementation are presented on the next page.

Examples of Savings and Revenues In First Two Years of Using Chapter 30B

Solid Waste Contracts *

Lynn	$600,000 saved in first year
Medford	$1.2 million saved over three years
Everett	$194,000 saved annually
Nahant	$225,000 saved over three years

Insurance Contracts *

Lynn	$243,000 premium decrease
Medford	$200,000 premium decrease
Lowell	$175,000 premium decrease
Worcester	$67,000 premium decrease
Lawrence	$60,000 premium decrease
Nantucket	$50,000 premium decrease

Miscellaneous Contracts

Plymouth	$390,000 saved over three years for special education transportation services
Lynn	$35,000 saved annually for convalescent home housekeeping services
Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High School	$138,000 saved over three years for class rings

Police-Ordered Towing *

Chelsea	$170,000 revenue annually
Lynn	$200,000 revenue over two years
Everett	$65,000 revenue in first year
Somerville	$40,000 revenue in first year

Golf Course Restaurant Leases

Brockton	$43,000 revenue over three years
Braintree	$21,000 revenue over three years

* Subsequent amendments have exempted these contracts from the competitive requirements of Chapter 30B. Local governments may opt to follow Chapter 30B procedures to obtain the benefits of competition.

Contracts Subject to Chapter 30B

Chapter 30B establishes procedures to follow for most agreements for supplies, equipment and services, dispositions of surplus supplies, and real property acquisitions and dispositions. In general, the law does not apply to contracts governed by specific provisions of other statutes, such as the public construction bid laws, the designer selection law, or the law governing takings by eminent domain.

Who pays is irrelevant to whether a contract is subject to Chapter 30B.

The law applies because there is an agreement between a local government and a vendor. For example, a yearbook contract awarded by a school official falls under the law even though parents or students will pay for the yearbooks.

Supplies and services

Most local government agreements with vendors of supplies and services are subject to Chapter 30B, including agreements to buy, rent, lease, lease-purchase, or otherwise acquire supplies or services. “Supplies” are defined in the law as “all property, other than real property, including equipment, materials, and printing and further including services incidental to the delivery, conveyance and installation of such property.” “Services” are defined as “the furnishing of labor, time, or effort by a contractor, not involving the furnishing of a specific end product other than reports.”²

The definition of services excludes:

- employment agreements, in which the jurisdiction and the individual have the legal relationship of employer and employee;
- collective bargaining agreements; and
- grant agreements, which involve grants to individuals or nonprofit entities for the public purpose of support or stimulation, rather than for the procurement of supplies or services for the benefit or use of the jurisdiction.³

² M.G.L. c. 30B, §2.

³ M.G.L. c. 30B, §2.

The law also contains a list of specific exemptions.⁴ A complete list of all Chapter 30B exemptions, and the Office of the Inspector General's interpretations of the exemptions, is in Appendix A. In general, these exemptions can be categorized as follows:

- intergovernmental agreements, such as an agreement to procure supplies or services from, or to dispose of supplies to, the federal government; the Commonwealth; the government of another state; a city, town, or other political subdivision of any state; or another department or unit of the same city or town;
- procurements from vendors under statewide contracts awarded by the Operational Services Division (the state purchasing agency); and
- agreements to purchase certain services including ambulance services, collection of delinquent taxes or the services of a deputy tax collector, contracts with lawyers, doctors, certified public accountants, or designers, and contracts for advertising required notices.

A brief overview of the procedures used under Chapter 30B to procure supplies and services is presented on the next page.

⁴ M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b). An exemption does not preclude you from using Chapter 30B procedures, and this Office recommends that you follow the procedures for large contracts for exempted supplies or services.

Supplies and Services: Overview of Procedures

Chapter 30B establishes three sets of procedures for awarding supply and service contracts depending on the value of the contract.

- Contracts under $5,000 - Use sound business practices. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §4(c).) The law does not require formal competition for these small purchases. We recommend that you periodically solicit price lists or quotations to ensure you are getting favorable prices.
- Contracts from $5,000 to $24,999 - Seek price quotations from at least three vendors and award the contract to the responsible vendor offering the supply or service needed for the lowest price. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §4(b).) See Chapter 3 for more information on procuring supplies or services using quotations.
- Contracts of $25,000 or more - Conduct a formal advertised competition using sealed bids or proposals. In a bid competition, you award the contract to the qualified bidder who meets your specifications and offers you the best price. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §5.) In a proposal process, you award the contract to the offeror submitting the most advantageous proposal taking into consideration your specified evaluation criteria as well as price. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §6.) See Chapters 4 and 5 for more information on soliciting bids and proposals.

Surplus supplies

Chapter 30B has procedures for disposing of any supply with a net value of $5,000 or more. The procedures include solicitations for sealed bids, public auctions, or use of an established market.⁵ See Chapter 7 for more information on disposing of surplus supplies.

Real property

Chapter 30B contains procedures for entering into agreements with a cost or value of more than $25,000 to rent, convey, or otherwise dispose of an interest in real property, or to acquire an interest in real property by purchase or rental. The law does not, however, apply to residential rentals to qualified tenants by a housing or community development authority.⁶ See Chapter 8 for more information on real property acquisitions and dispositions.

Construction contracts for $25,000 or less – Optional

Contracts estimated to cost more than $10,000 for construction, maintenance, and repair work on public works or buildings and construction materials are subject to the state's construction bid laws.⁷ However, for either building or public works construction projects estimated to cost more than $10,000 but not more than $25,000, you have the option to follow either the construction bid laws (M.G.L. c. 30, §39M) or the M.G.L. c. 30B bid process.⁸ (You may only use the Chapter 30B bid process; you may not use the Chapter 30B quotation or proposal process for such contracts.) See Chapter 9 for additional information about construction contracting.

The Inspector General's Role

The Office of the Inspector General is charged with preventing and detecting fraud, waste, and abuse in public programs. We also have a specific statutory mandate to enforce compliance with Chapter 30B.⁹ Whenever possible, we emphasize prevention to avoid problems before they occur. Consequently, we focus much of our effort on preventing problems through training and technical assistance to public officials. This manual reflects that focus as does our Massachusetts Certified Public Purchasing Official program described in the box on the next page. We also publish a quarterly newsletter, the Procurement Bulletin, with answers to frequently asked questions, articles relating to municipal procurement, and highlights of legislative and other developments of interest to procurement officials. We invite you to send us questions, comments, and articles for coming editions.

⁶ M.G.L. c. 30B, §16(h).

⁷ The Fair Labor and Business Practices Division of the Office of the Attorney General is charged with enforcement of the construction bid laws.

⁸ M.G.L. c. 30, §39M(d)(4).

⁹ M.G.L. c. 30B, §17.

Our staff is available to answer technical questions that arise when you undertake a new procurement. We have also developed a speedy, informal bid protest resolution process, which is described in Chapter 10. See Appendix C for information on contacting us and on other sources for advice and assistance.

The Massachusetts Public Purchasing Official Program

The MCPPO program is a certification program for public purchasing officials. The program promotes professionalism and excellence in public procurement, preparing participants to make best value procurements for their jurisdictions. The three-day core seminars are offered several times throughout the year and each one concludes with a written examination. Additional special purpose seminars are offered periodically. The Office developed this program in consultation with public purchasing officials, including members of the Massachusetts Public Purchasing Officials Association, the Massachusetts Association of School Business Officials, and the City Solicitors and Town Counsel Association. The MCPPO program meets standards set by national organizations that accredit education and training programs, including the International Association for Continuing Education and Training, the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy, the American Council on Education, and the American Institute of Architects. The Massachusetts Department of Education has also designated the Office a registered provider of professional development for educators in Massachusetts.

Additional information about the program can be obtained by calling (617) 523-1205 or visiting our website at www.state.ma.us/ig.

About this Manual

Since the enactment of the Chapter 30B, the Office of the Inspector General has provided extensive training and technical assistance to local governments using its procedures. This manual continues our commitment to assistance.

This manual updates the 1998 version. We have tried to provide an overview of the law and explain its procedures in an easy-to-understand style. The update emphasizes “best value” procurement – making decisions not just on the basis of price but also giving appropriate consideration to quality and performance – and reflects amendments made to Chapter 30B. We have also undertaken to call upon and share with you lessons drawn from our experiences in assisting local officials throughout the state.

We hope that you will find most of the guidance you need in these pages. What you will not find here, of course, are any specifics about your local government's procurement rules, payment approval procedures, or record-keeping systems. Remember that your procurement process must comply with any special acts, rules, regulations, ordinances, and bylaws applicable to your jurisdiction. For example, your jurisdiction may have a local rule that requires formal, advertised competition at levels lower than those set in Chapter 30B. Often the best source of advice on such matters is your chief procurement officer, chief financial officer, or local counsel.

CHAPTER 2

Supply And Service Contracts: Getting Started

Chapter 30B establishes general procedures for you to follow in awarding supply and service contracts. Your own local government creates the details of your purchasing system. This chapter briefly considers topics relating to your local organization and procedures, and then examines some first steps you will take in preparing any procurement of supplies or services.

Local Organization and Procedures

The details of local purchasing systems are set by local governments. For example, what forms must be used, who has to approve purchases, and who may make purchases are all local decisions. Also, local bylaws or ordinances may establish additional rules governing purchasing.

Local rules may dictate more rigorous procedures for smaller purchases. For example, if your local government has a bylaw or ordinance requiring formal advertised competition on contracts over $2,000, you must comply with the local rule. If you have any questions about the existence or applicability of local rules, contact your CPO or chief financial officer.

Chief Procurement Officer

Chapter 30B restricts the use of requests for proposals for supplies or services to local governments that appoint a “Chief Procurement Officer” (CPO) to oversee the procurement of all supplies and services. The CPO is responsible for all activities related to buying, leasing, renting, or otherwise acquiring supplies and services for all departments.¹⁰ This responsibility includes overseeing the solicitation, opening and evaluation of bids and proposals, and the award of contracts. The CPO ensures that contracting practices are carried out in accordance with state laws and local requirements.

Chapter 30B does not specify who may sign a contract on behalf of a local government. If you have any questions, check with your CPO or local counsel.

¹⁰ M.G.L. c. 30B, §2.

Centralization of purchasing under a CPO can result in greater efficiency and effectiveness. For example, your local government can use centralized purchasing to award “blanket contracts” for standard items used by many different departments, such as office supplies. Under a blanket contract, each department can obtain supplies as needed from the vendor, taking advantage of the low prices obtained through bulk purchasing. Moreover, through centralization, multiple departments do not need to develop detailed knowledge of purchasing procedures.

CPO delegations of purchasing authority

It is not necessary to file delegation forms for staff working on procurements under the direction of the CPO or another official to whom authority has been delegated. The CPO or delegatee retains responsibility for overseeing procurement functions carried out by staff.

A delegation applies to the position, rather than the person occupying the position. It is not necessary to file a new delegation form simply because of a staff change.

While appointment of a CPO can result in centralized purchasing, Chapter 30B allows a CPO, once appointed, wide latitude to delegate powers and duties to other officials. A delegation can be very specific and limited to a particular purchase or class of purchases, or it can be more general. Any delegation of the CPO's responsibilities, and any amendment or revocation of a delegation, must be in writing, signed by the CPO, and filed with the Office of the Inspector General. (A delegation form is included in Appendix B.) A delegation will remain in effect until amended or revoked by the CPO unless the delegation includes an expiration date.

If your local government has a charter, bylaw, or ordinance governing the exercise of purchasing powers, any delegation of Chapter 30B powers and duties is subject to those provisions.¹¹ For example, a bylaw that requires that the town manager purchase all supplies would prohibit the transfer of that responsibility through a Chapter 30B delegation.

¹¹ M.G.L. c. 30B, §19.

If you have any questions about your local procurement system, contact your CPO or local counsel.

Contracting for Supplies and Services: First Steps

There are several steps you will take in any contract for supplies or services regardless of the contract amount and the method (quotations, bids, or proposals) you use to award the contract.

Step 1: Determine what you need

The first step in any procurement is to determine what you need. Often identifying what you need will be simple, as when your inventory of stationery is low and you need to buy the same type of stationery that you have bought in the past. In other cases, a procurement may be unavoidably complex.

Researching the market is often essential, and an ongoing effort to collect market information may be worthwhile. For example:

Maybe you can buy what you need from an existing contract. You may be able to save time and money by making your purchase under an existing contract. Examples include:

- Blanket contracts issued by your local government for the item you need.
- Collective purchasing agreements your local government has entered into with other jurisdictions. Such agreements are authorized under M.G.L. c. 7, §22B. The lead jurisdiction must comply with Chapter 30B in awarding the collective purchasing contract.
- Statewide contracts. Under M.G.L. c. 7, §22A, you can use these large volume contracts.

- Contact people in your position in other jurisdictions or other members of your professional association.
- Determine if prices are temporarily high or low, then adjust your purchase quantities accordingly.

If you are making procurements for other departments, the users should play a central role in determining what they need. They are often in the best position to know what advances have been made in their field, such as new materials or equipment that may improve their department's productivity.

In some cases your jurisdiction may not have employees with the expertise required to adequately consider alternatives and identify what is necessary to address specific needs. It may be cost-effective to obtain the necessary expertise, even if that means using a paid consultant. It is not prudent, however, to rely on a consultant to define your jurisdiction's needs if that consultant may also obtain the contract to fulfill those needs. The concern here is that the consultant's recommendations will be tailored to favor his or her own company. By the same token, you should not rely on a supplier to determine what supplies or equipment you need.

Combine your needs in large volume contracts. As a rule, you will realize savings by purchasing in larger volumes. Vendors may price supplies and services more aggressively when large volumes are involved, and large volumes will often serve to attract greater competition. Volume purchasing also results in administrative efficiencies, since you can concentrate on a few large procurements rather than many small procurements.

You may combine supplies and services in one procurement.

Sometimes it makes good business sense to do so. For example, when providing food preparation services, you may want to structure the procurement to include the cost of the food itself.

To realize the benefits of volume purchasing, review your purchasing needs over a period of time – at least for the upcoming fiscal or school year – and identify the amount of supplies or services you will need. Your solicitation may allow for delivery and payments to be made on an installment basis throughout the contract term. Consider your purchases in prior years and any special or unusual needs that you expect to arise during the period for which you are making the purchase. Combine like items or services in one procurement wherever feasible. It is permissible, and may be preferable, to use one solicitation for a large number of different items and specify that each item will be procured from the vendor offering the lowest price for

Do not split bids! Bid splitting is causing or conspiring to cause the division of any procurement for the purpose of evading the requirements of the law. For example, if you know you need 20 desks that cost $300 each, for a total of $6,000, you may not buy the desks separately to avoid soliciting three quotations. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §11.)

that item. Examples of supplies that can most easily be purchased this way include auto parts, office supplies, and custodial supplies.

Consider collective purchasing agreements with other jurisdictions. State statutes offer you another opportunity for volume purchasing: entering into collective purchasing agreements with other jurisdictions. Under M.G.L. c. 7, §22B, two or more jurisdictions may jointly contract with vendors for materials, supplies, equipment, or services. Typically, one of the jurisdictions will assume the lead role in making the procurement, acting as the purchasing agent for the group. The contract must be procured under the requirements of Chapter 30B, and each jurisdiction must accept sole responsibility for any payment due the vendor for its share of the purchase. Collective purchasing agreements can save you time and money.

Step 2: Write a purchase description

Once you have determined what you need, you must describe your needs to vendors in sufficient detail to ensure that you receive responsive quotations, bids, or proposals that can be priced and compared in a fair manner. The term used in Chapter 30B for your presentation of what you want to buy is the “purchase description.” A sufficient purchase description for some items, such as office supplies, may require only a few words for each item. For more complex procurements, the purchase description will include more detailed “specifications” – that is, particulars regarding size, dimensions, quality, performance, warranties, installation, and terms. A purchase description may also include a “scope of services” detailing specific services, including the “work products” or “deliverables” to be produced under the contract.

Use purchase descriptions from other jurisdictions and alter them to meet your needs. When you do, ask where they got the purchase description and whether it resulted in strong competition. We have seen numerous cases where communities share a purchase description that originated with, and therefore favored, one vendor. Be careful not to use a purchase description if it would unfairly advantage a single vendor.

Effort spent at the outset on a clear purchase description is a good investment. An inadequate purchase description renders effective competition impossible. Would-be vendors will not know what you are seeking and will be unable to offer a reliable price. Vague purchase descriptions often result in vendor protests and cancelled procurements. If you do award a contract using a vague purchase description, you may pay for supplies or services you do not need, and you are likely to have disputes with the contractor over what the contract does or does not require.

Preparation of the purchase description is often the most difficult – and most important – step of any procurement. Do not reinvent the wheel: borrow freely from the experience of others. It is highly unlikely that you are the first to procure the supply or service you are trying to describe. Call your colleagues in other jurisdictions or national organizations such as the National Institute of Government Purchasing. (See Appendix C of this manual for more information on sources of advice and assistance.) Find purchase descriptions that others have used successfully and adapt these to your needs. If you are writing a purchase description from scratch for a frequently used supply or service, you are making your first mistake.

Be careful about using vendors' specifications when drafting your purchase description. It is always a good idea to find out what vendors offer, but do not rely on a single vendor's specifications. If you're not careful, you may end up giving one vendor an unfair advantage or giving the appearance of favoritism.

If you experience difficulty in preparing a purchase description for a given procurement, it may be that you have not adequately defined your needs and you will have to return to that step before you can proceed.

Typical components of a purchase description are discussed below:

- Description of the supplies or services required. List and describe each supply or service in sufficient detail for all vendors to understand what you need. If you have samples, drawings, or other documents, either append them to the purchase description or incorporate them by reference and tell vendors where they may obtain or review them. When purchasing a service, clearly specify the service or services vendors will be required to perform and the documents, reports, and materials they must deliver. Remember if you fail to include something that you want in the purchase description, the contract will not require a vendor to supply it.

Do not present your needs as a problem and ask vendors to suggest solutions. That approach would, in effect, let vendors write their own purchase descriptions. Massachusetts courts have ruled that “problem-oriented” or “open-ended” IFBs or RFPs do not meet the legal standard for open and fair competition.¹² It is the jurisdiction’s responsibility to define what it needs with as much specificity as possible so that vendors are offering supplies, services, and prices on a clearly defined – and level – playing field.

You may hold a bidders’ or proposers’ conference to supplement the purchase description.

A conference may be necessary if, for example, vendors must examine a particular piece of equipment. However, a sufficiently detailed purchase description will usually make a conference unnecessary.

If you do plan one, include notice of the meeting in the purchase description. We recommend that you keep minutes of the meeting, noting all comments made, questions asked, and answers given, and distribute the minutes to all vendors in time for them to prepare their submittal.

- Quantities required. Indicate the quantity of each supply or service you need, and whether the quantity shown is the actual amount or an estimate. Vendors need this information to judge whether they can handle the contract and to submit accurate prices. If you use an estimate, make it as realistic as you can, because under Chapter 30B you may not increase the quantity of supplies or services called for in a contract by more than 25 percent.¹³
- Schedule for performance. Specify when you require each supply or service. For example, will all supplies be delivered at once, or within three days of any properly executed order during the term of the contract? On what date must the supplier commence deliveries, and on what date must they actually be received? What are the due dates of the deliverables from the consultant? How frequently must a recurring service be performed? The exact schedule or an approximate schedule, with a statement that it is subject to minor adjustment, should be included in the purchase description.
- Delivery terms. Specify the delivery terms. Must the supplier deliver the supplies or will you pick them up? Where must the supplies be delivered? To whom must services be provided? At what location in your jurisdiction must a service be performed?

¹³ M.G.L. c. 30B, §13.

Proprietary Specifications

Avoid proprietary specifications wherever possible. Proprietary specifications cite specific brand names or have the effect of restricting the procurement to one product. You may use proprietary specifications only if “no other manner of description suffices,” and then you must provide a written justification for your decision. (M.G.L. c. 30B, §14.)

In some instances, you may not be able to avoid using proprietary specifications. For example, if you want to purchase a newer version of your operating system software, you will want to use the software’s brand name. If the software contract costs $25,000 or more, you will have to advertise an IFB using proprietary specifications, and the software vendor will have to submit a bid in response. See Chapter 6 for more information on sole-source procurements.

Often you can foster competition even when you use proprietary specifications. For example, if you are expanding your computer system to include a new department, you may decide that the new computer stations should be the same brand and model as the existing computer stations due to your need for compatible applications, communication between computer stations, and efficient training of computer users. You may also have maintenance and warranty rights that would be jeopardized if you installed another manufacturer’s equipment in your system. In cases such as this, you may specify the brand name of the computer manufacturer. Since several dealers may sell the brand and model of computer equipment you are seeking, you will still be able to obtain competitive quotations, bids, or proposals in response to your proprietary specifications.

Step 3: Prepare contract terms and conditions

Since you must develop the contract terms and conditions prior to issuing the IFB or RFP, it is best to provide interested vendors with a copy of the contract which the successful bidder or proposer will be required to sign. We recommend that you consult with your attorney to develop standard contract terms and conditions. The amount of detail in the contract will depend, at least in part, upon the size and nature of the procurement. In preparing the contract, you may find the checklist on the next page useful.

Contract Terms and Conditions Checklist

Note: Every contract of $5,000 or more must be signed by the person authorized in your jurisdiction to execute contracts. Consult your attorney if you are unsure about who must sign a contract.

- a. Identify the parties to the contract and the responsible parties to receive any notices under the contract.
- b. Incorporate by reference the selected vendor's bid or proposal (including for proposals the plan of services, if any).
- c. Incorporate by reference the purchase description.
- d. Specify the term of the contract including any renewal, extension, or other options. If there are any options, specify that they may be exercised by your jurisdiction at its sole discretion, and how and when the options may be exercised.
- e. Identify the payment terms, including when payments will be made, and what documents must be submitted for payment. There are different legal rights and obligations arising from various payment terms.
- f. If the contract is subject to the state's prevailing wage law, incorporate the wage schedule obtained from the state Department of Labor and Workforce Development.
- g. Specify that payment is subject to appropriation or other availability of funds (e.g., state or federal grants).
- h. Specify remedies for default (e.g., liquidated damages).
- i. Specify the contractor's responsibility for providing liability insurance and workers' compensation.
- j. Specify the contractor's responsibility for providing bonding (e.g., a payment or performance bond).
- k. Specify that all contract amendments must be in writing and signed by officials with authority to bind the jurisdiction.
- l. Specify whether the contract may be assigned and who must approve the assignment.
- m. Specify what constitutes cause to terminate the contract, what notice must be provided prior to termination, and what opportunity will be granted to correct any problem.
- n. Prohibit any activity that would constitute a violation of the conflict of interest statute. (M.G.L. c. 268A.)
- o. Include a certification of tax compliance by the vendor. (M.G.L. c. 62C, §49A.)
- p. Specify that the document is the entire contract and that there are no agreements other than those incorporated therein.

Please note that this checklist is not exhaustive; the terms and conditions of any particular contract may differ.

Contract duration. You may – subject to local ordinances, bylaws, or rules – enter into a procurement contract for any period of time up to three years, including the term of any renewal, extension, or option. A supplies and services contract with a term of more than three years, including the term of any renewal, extension, or option, is permissible only if longer contracts have been authorized by a majority vote of the governing body of your jurisdiction before you award the contract.¹⁴ The authorization may apply to a single contract in excess of three years, or it may specify time limits for any number or types of contracts.

You may not enter into a multi-year contract unless funds are available for the first fiscal year of the contract. The payment and performance obligations for each succeeding year of a multi-year contract will be subject to appropriation or availability of other funds, such as state or federal grants.¹⁵

Determine the contract length that would best suit your jurisdiction's needs. As you make this determination, keep in mind that both short-term and long-term contracts involve tradeoffs. For example, a three-year contract term will lock in prices and avoid the need for a separate procurement each year. However, if prices fall, you may end up paying more than you would under a shorter contract. Longer contracts will make sense in some cases. For example, if vendors will incur high start-up costs, a longer contract will allow them to spread the start-up costs over a period of years.

Contract options for renewal, extension, or purchase. When considering the length of the contract, you must also decide whether to provide for any renewal, extension, or ¹⁴ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12. The majority vote required to approve multi-year contracts must be taken by:

- for towns or districts, a duly called town or district meeting;
- for cities, the city council or the city commissioners, with the approval of the mayor if such approval is required under the city charter;
- for counties, the county commission;
- for regional school districts, an affirmative vote by two-thirds of the members of the school committee; and
- for a redevelopment, housing, or other authority, the governing body.

¹⁵ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12(a).

purchase options. You may not exercise an extension, renewal, or purchase option unless the option terms were advertised in the original IFB or RFP, and the contract provides your jurisdiction with sole discretion, without the consent of the contractor, to exercise the option.¹⁶

Before you can exercise any renewal, extension, or purchase option, you must determine whether it is more advantageous to your jurisdiction to exercise the option or to undertake a new procurement.¹⁷ To make this determination, you need to conduct a reasonable investigation of the cost and benefits and to document your findings in writing. A reasonable investigation must establish that the prices you will pay after exercising the option or renewing the contract are reasonable under current market conditions. It may be possible to make such a determination based on a comparison of prices recently obtained through competition by other jurisdictions on similar contracts. Alternatively, you may consider conducting a formal, advertised competition for the term of the extension or renewal. Then, if you do not receive a better bid or proposal, you can exercise the contract option.

Step 4: Estimate the value of the contract

The procedures you use to procure goods and services under Chapter 30B depend on the value of the contract you will award. As noted in Chapter 1, there are three important thresholds:

- For contracts under $5,000, use sound business practices.
- For contracts of $5,000 or more, but less than $25,000, seek at least three oral or written quotations from vendors. Chapter 3 provides more information on using quotations.
- For contracts of $25,000 or more, advertise and solicit competitive sealed bids or proposals. Chapters 4 and 5 explain bids and proposals.

¹⁶ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12.

¹⁷ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12(e).

Remember that these are minimum thresholds. If your local government has established a lower threshold for advertising by charter, ordinance, or bylaw, you must also adhere to that local threshold. If you have any question about the requirements in your jurisdiction, check with either your CPO or your local counsel.

Step 5: Contracts of $25,000 or more: bids or proposals

If your estimate is $25,000 or more, you must decide whether you want to use an invitation for bids (IFB) or a request for proposals (RFP). Under both processes, award is made to a responsible vendor who is responsive to your IFB or RFP.

The IFB and RFP processes differ in some important ways. Bidding is the basic method for procuring contracts for supplies and services of $25,000 or more, and tends to be more efficient than using an RFP. Generally, award is made to the vendor who meets all your criteria and offers you the best price.

The contract price, not your estimate, determines the procedures you must follow. You may not enter into a contract unless you have used the appropriate procedures for the amount of the contract. For example, if you estimated the value of a contract at $23,000, and the best quotation you can obtain is a price of $26,000 you may not execute a contract without following the competitive sealed bid or proposal process for contracts of $25,000 or more.

The RFP process permits you to weigh the relative merits of proposals submitted by competing offerors. You award the contract to the offeror submitting the most advantageous proposal, taking into consideration the proposals' relative merits and prices. Unlike bidding, the RFP process may not always result in selection of the qualified proposer offering the lowest price. Only jurisdictions that have appointed a CPO may make procurements using RFPs, and then only when the CPO, or someone with delegated authority, determines in writing that "selection of the most advantageous offer requires comparative judgments of factors in addition to price."¹⁸

¹⁸ M.G.L. c. 30B, §6(a).

This Office recommends that you seriously consider bidding most of your procurements, including service contracts. The key to successful bidding is to define your quality requirements so that you would truly be satisfied with anyone who meets them. For many services, the bid process can work well if you think through and set forth the quality requirements that the contractor must meet to be acceptable.

CHAPTER 3

Supply and Service Contracts Between $5,000 and $25,000

You may award a contract for supplies or services valued between $5,000 and $25,000 to the vendor who offers the quality of supply or service you need at the best price based on the solicitation of three written or oral quotations. The Chapter 30B procedures for obtaining quotations are flexible, straightforward, and well suited to making small purchases rapidly without getting bogged down in paperwork.

Step 1: Develop a purchase description

In order to describe to vendors the supply or service for which you want them to provide a quotation, you will need a purchase description. In most cases, developing a purchase description for small procurements is fairly simple. For example, you could seek quotations for copy paper based on the following purchase description: "Five hundred reams of 20 lb. weight, bright white, 8½ x 11 copy paper, delivered to Town Hall on January 2." However, if you were to procure sophisticated equipment or professional services, a more detailed purchase description would likely be necessary.

There is no explicit requirement that you actually write a purchase description, but in many cases you will need one as a practical matter to make sure you adequately describe what you need to each vendor you contact for a quotation. You can then read it over the telephone or fax it to three vendors. Whether or not the purchase description is in writing, you must ensure that each vendor provides quotations based on the same purchase description.

Step 2: Seek three quotations

Procurements in the amount of $5,000 to $25,000 may be made by seeking prices from at least three vendors, orally or in writing, in person, by phone, e-mail, mail, or fax. As stated above, all vendors' quotations must be based on the same purchase description. You must seek quotations from vendors you reasonably expect to sell the supplies or services you need. If you have reason to believe a vendor is not responsible, including poor prior performance by the vendor, do not ask that vendor for a quotation.

You can use current catalog and sale brochure prices as quotations.
This approach can be timesaving when purchasing supplies.

Record the following information:

- the names and addresses of all persons you contacted for quotations.
- the names of all persons who submitted quotations and the date and amount of each quotation.

You can award a sole-source contract of less than $25,000 if a reasonable investigation indicates that there is only one practicable source for the supply or service. (See M.G.L. c. 30B, §7.) In this case, you need not seek other quotations, but you must record and retain in a file:

- the contractor's name;
- the contract amount and type;
- the supplies or services procured; and
- the basis for your determination that only one practicable source exists.

Chapter 30B requires you to seek at least three quotations; it does not require you to obtain three quotations. If, after making a reasonable effort, you cannot get three vendors to quote you a price on the supply or service you need, you may award the contract on the basis of one or two quotations. However, you should consider broadening your search and contacting a few more vendors to make sure that you are getting a competitive price.

Step 3: Determine the best value (the best-priced quotation from a responsible vendor for the quality required) and award the contract

After obtaining quotations, you identify the best-priced offer from a responsible vendor offering the quality of supply or service you need. A responsible vendor is one who has the ability, capacity, and integrity to perform under the contract. Award the contract to the responsible vendor offering the best-priced quotation. Where the contract will require your jurisdiction to pay the contractor, the best price is the lowest price. Where the contract will require the contractor to pay your jurisdiction, the best price is the highest price.

Remember that all contracts of $5,000 or more must be in writing.¹⁹ (For more information on written contracts, see Chapter 2.)

Step 4: Retain records

All written documents required under Chapter 30B must be maintained for a period of six years from the date of final payment under the contract. These records include the following for procurements of supplies or services from $5,000 to $25,000:

- the purchase description.
- the names and addresses of all persons from whom quotations were sought.
- the date and amount of each quotation.
- the executed contract and any amendments to the contract if the contract is for $5,000 or more.

CHAPTER 4

Supply and Service Contracts

$25,000 or More:

Bids

You will use bidding to award a supply or service contract to the responsive and responsible bidder who offers you the best price. Your objective is to obtain the best value by establishing evaluation criteria that will ensure you obtain the quality of supplies or services you need from a contractor who will perform as you require. Under Chapter 30B, you must use competitive sealed bids to procure supplies and services with a value of $25,000 or more unless your jurisdiction has appointed a Chief Procurement Officer (CPO) and the CPO – or an individual to whom the CPO has delegated powers and duties – has determined that competitive sealed proposals should be used.

If your local government has a CPO, only your CPO or anyone with delegated authority from the CPO may solicit bids. (Chapter 2 has more information on CPOs and delegations.) If you have no CPO, you may solicit bids if authorized by statute, charter or bylaw; if you have been duly delegated authority; or if you are a member of a board, committee, commission, or other body with procurement responsibilities. If you have questions, check with your CPO (if you have one) or local counsel.

Chapter 2 was a review of the first steps involved in bidding supplies and services:

determining what you need, writing a purchase description (specification, scope of services), developing contract terms and conditions, and estimating the value of the contract. You may want to review that information before proceeding into this chapter, which reviews the specific steps involved in soliciting competitive sealed bids.

Step 1: Prepare the invitation for bids (IFB)

Your invitation for bids provides vendors with the information necessary to prepare and submit a responsive bid. An IFB consists of the following major components:

- bid submission requirements
- purchase description or scope of services
- evaluation criteria

- documents incorporated by reference, if any
- contract terms and conditions
- standard forms

Development of the purchase description and contract terms and conditions are discussed in Chapter 2. The remaining elements of the IFB are discussed below.²⁰

Evaluation criteria. Defining the criteria that you will use to evaluate the bids you receive is just as important as describing what you intend to purchase. You are interested in the vendor who offers the best price and meets all of your quality requirements – requirements that are, in effect, items to which the answers are either “yes” or “no.” You are not concerned with whether a bidder is good, better, or best; you are only concerned with which bidder among those offering quality goods and services and who have a record for good performance offers you the best price. For example, in buying tires, you want to identify which bidder meets the standard you specified (perhaps a U.S. Department of Transportation tire rating) in the purchase description, is able to perform well, and offers the best price. Similarly, in buying a service, you may want to identify the bidder who has a specified amount of relevant experience, staff, and financial capacity to perform the work, and who offers the best price. (If you wish to compare quality differences among vendors who otherwise meet your quality requirements with price, you should use proposals instead of bids. See Chapter 2 for a comparison of bids and proposals.)

The evaluation criteria for bids are measures of responsiveness (whether the bidder agrees to provide the supply or service you specified and whether the bid contains all required documents and forms properly completed), responsibility (whether the bidder has the capability, integrity, and reliability to perform under the contract), and best price. Often, determining responsiveness, responsibility, and best price will be simple matters, and a statement in the IFB that you will award the contract to the responsive and responsible bidder who offers the best price will be sufficient. In other cases, more evaluation may be required.

The IFB must specify the criteria you will use. For example:

- If you plan to test products offered by bidders, you must specify the standards you will use to determine acceptability as to quality, workmanship, results of inspections and tests, and suitability for a particular purpose.
- If you require separate bid prices for a number of items, you must indicate whether you will award one contract to the bidder offering the lowest aggregate price for all the items, or award a contract to each bidder offering the lowest price for each item.
- If you require bid prices for each year of a multi-year contract, you must specify how you will determine the lowest bid.
- If you plan to check references to ensure that the vendor has the required experience, you should so indicate.

Documents incorporated by reference. If you incorporate documents by reference into the IFB, you must specify where bidders may obtain these documents.

Standard forms. Chapter 30B requires each bidder to submit a non-collusion form certifying that the bid was made in good faith and without collusion or fraud.²¹ It is a good idea to include a copy of the form in your IFB to ensure compliance with this requirement. A sample non-collusion form is included in Appendix B.

Typically, bidders also are required to complete other standard forms. In bidding a number of supply items, for example, you should provide a standard bid form listing each bid item and the quantity you require, leaving a space for the bidder to insert a unit price and total price for each item. These standard forms should be included in the IFB document.

Bid submission requirements. The IFB must specify when (date and time) and where sealed bids must be delivered, and the maximum amount of time you reserve to award a contract. You should also provide instructions on how to mark bid packages and how to correct, modify, or withdraw bids. Any other relevant requirements should also be included: for example, specify that each bidder must submit the non-collusion form.

Step 2: Provide public notice of the IFB

You must give public notice of an IFB a “reasonable time prior to the date of the opening of bids.”²² The notice must be published at least two weeks before bids are due. Otherwise, what is “reasonable” depends on the nature of the bid. The more complex a bid, or the more items included in the bid, the more time vendors may need to compile their bids. Availability of qualified vendors may also affect the bidding schedule. If you will need to search for and encourage qualified vendors to bid, you may need to allow extra time.

The public notice must contain the following information:

- a statement of where, when, and for how long the IFB may be obtained;
- a description of the supply or service to be procured (e.g., a summary of the detailed purchase description included in the IFB);
- a notice that your jurisdiction reserves the right to reject any or all bids; and
- an identification of any board, committee, commission, or other body which must approve the contract.

Weigh the pressure to award a contract quickly against the need to maximize competition. Shorter periods of time may favor a vendor who has held the contract in the past, or simply eliminate potential competitors who may be able to offer better prices.

You may include other information in the notice. For example, if you have decided to charge a fee for copies of the IFB, indicate the amount of the fee and the form in which it may be paid.

You must post the notice in a conspicuous place in or near your local government’s offices until the time specified in the IFB for receipt of bids (a minimum of two weeks). If your local government has an official bulletin board, that is where the notice should be posted.

You must publish the notice at least once, not less than two weeks prior to the time specified for the receipt of bids, in at least one newspaper of general circulation within the area served by your jurisdiction.²³ You may, of course, publish the notice in more than one newspaper in your area, in newspapers outside your area, and more than once. You may wish to do additional advertising for a major or specialized procurement.

If the contract value will be $100,000 or more, you must also publish a notice in the Goods and Services Bulletin published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.²⁴ The form you must use is included in Appendix B.

You may contact vendors to let them know about the IFB. If you maintain bidders lists for contracts, you may send a copy of the notice or the IFB to those vendors on the list who might be interested in the particular contract. You may also simply call vendors to encourage bids. However, be careful to avoid favoritism or the appearance of favoritism.

Step 3: Distribute the IFB

You must make the IFB available on an equal basis to all who request a copy. If you charge vendors a fee for copies of the IFB, you must charge all vendors.

Keep a record of all vendors who receive the IFB. If you later issue an addendum to the IFB, send the addendum to all those who have already received the IFB. To avoid misunderstandings or protests, include a requirement on the bid form that vendors acknowledge in writing their receipt of any addenda. Also, if vendors are likely to require additional time to respond to the addendum, extend the bid due date.

²³ The Secretary of the Commonwealth has granted the City of Boston permission to publish a periodical listing contract opportunities as a substitute for advertising in a newspaper.

²⁴ You must mail, fax, or email your notice to the Goods and Services Bulletin, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; E-mail: regs@sec.state.ma.us; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Bulletin.

Step 4: Receive sealed bids

Be prepared to accept sealed bids after you issue the IFB. Keep a register of bids received. It is good practice to note on the sealed bid package the date and time it was received, and provide the bidders with receipts for the package upon request.

Prior to the bid opening, bidders may correct, modify, or withdraw their bids by following the instructions you provided in the IFB. A bidder who wishes to withdraw a bid must do so in writing. Any correction or modification to a bid must be submitted in writing. Because the original document must be submitted as a sealed package, the IFB should include a requirement that corrections or modifications also be sealed when submitted.

If a bidder or its agent delivers a late bid, you may not accept it. If you do receive such a bid, you should note the time of receipt and return the bid package unopened to the bidder, along with an explanation of the reason for rejection.

You may not accept a correction or modification delivered late, either. If you do receive such a late correction or modification, you should treat it as a late bid and evaluate only the original bid that was received by the deadline.

Step 5: Open and record bids in public

Bids must be opened in public. Under Chapter 30B, this means that bids must be opened either in a meeting which fulfills the requirements of the state's open meeting laws,²⁵ or in the presence of one or more witnesses.

If the bids are opened in an open meeting, a quorum of the body holding the meeting must be present, and the names of all bidders and the amounts of their bids must be entered into the minutes.²⁶ If the bids are opened in the presence of one or more witnesses, the procurement officer and the designated witness(es) must sign under penalties of perjury a statement listing the names of all bidders and the amounts of their bids, and declaring that the list is a complete and accurate list of the bids opened in your presence.

A bid may be withdrawn after it has been opened only if a mistake is clearly evident on the face of the document, but the intended correct answer is not evident. For example, if a bidder incorrectly multiplied unit prices by estimated quantities and added the incorrect subtotals to arrive at a total price, the mistake would be evident but the intended bid would not.

Step 6: Evaluate bids

You must evaluate bids using only the criteria identified in the IFB. The evaluation will address the responsiveness of the bid, the responsibility of the bidder, and the price. In many cases, this will require little more than using checklists to confirm that all required information and forms have been submitted, and making direct comparisons of costs.

Evaluate bids efficiently. It may be wise to first evaluate prices, and then consider the responsiveness and responsibility of the bidder with the apparent best bid. If you find that a bidder fails the full evaluation, go on to evaluate the next apparent best bidder. Conversely, if price evaluations may be time-consuming, look first at the responsiveness and responsibility of all bidders, and then perform price evaluations only for the responsive and responsible bidders.

In determining the responsiveness of a bid, you must waive minor informalities or allow the bidder to correct them. According to Chapter 30B, minor informalities are “minor deviations, insignificant mistakes, and matters of form rather than substance of the bid . . . which can be waived or corrected without prejudice to other offerors, potential offerors, or the governmental body.”²⁷ For example, the omission of a unit price figure is a minor deviation which must be waived when the intended figure is readily ascertainable from other figures in the bid.

²⁶ If the IFB solicited prices for a series of items, such as office supplies, and you plan to award a separate contract to the lowest bidder for each item, you need not transcribe each bidder’s prices for all items onto the signed statement. Instead, you may copy the pages of each bid submission containing the bid prices, attach them to the signed statement, and incorporate them by reference into the signed statement.

A bidder may not impose any conditions on a bid, or change the price or any other provision of a bid, in a manner prejudicial to the interests of your jurisdiction or fair competition.

You must correct a bid if a mistake and the intended bid are clearly evident on the face of the bid document. For example, a bidder might mistakenly insert the same figure ($1,000) both as a unit price per square yard of carpeting and as a total price for 100 square yards of carpeting. One of the figures is mistaken, and it is evident in this example that the unit price should be $10. In such a case, you must make the correction and notify the bidder in writing; the bidder must not be permitted to withdraw.

Step 7: Award the contract

You must award the contract to the qualified (that is, responsive and responsible) bidder who offers you the best price for the supply or service. Where the contract will require your jurisdiction to pay the contractor, the best price is the lowest price. Where the contract will require the contractor to pay your jurisdiction, the best price is the highest price.

Notice of the award decision should be given to the selected bidder within the time for acceptance you specified in the IFB. The time for acceptance may be extended for up to 45 days by mutual agreement between the jurisdiction and the apparent lowest (or highest, in the case of income-generating contracts) responsive and responsible bidder.

If your jurisdiction has a CPO, the CPO or someone delegated by the CPO should sign all contracts. However, the CPO’s signature is not sufficient if other officials’ signatures are required by state or local law to approve contracts. For example, the award of a contract may be subject to the approval of the mayor, the city council, the board of selectmen, or the school committee. If you are uncertain, check with your local counsel.

You are not required to award a contract. You may cancel the IFB at any time until the bids are opened. Once bids are opened, you may reject all the bids if you determine that such action is in the best interest of your jurisdiction. For example, it is in the best interest of your jurisdiction to reject all bids if the lowest price exceeds your budget, or if your purchase description was inadequate or inaccurate. Of course, you may not reject all bids simply because a favored bidder did not submit the lowest bid. You must state in writing the reason for any cancellation or rejection.

Step 8: Execute the contract

After you notify the successful bidder of the award, execute a written contract containing all the terms and conditions stated in the IFB.

If you are unsure about who has the authority to sign the contract, consult with your local counsel.

If the successful bidder refuses to execute the contract: You may award the contract to the responsive and responsible bidder who offered you the next best price. Discuss with your local counsel what action should be taken against the recalcitrant bidder. If the bidder posted a bid bond, consider attempting to collect against the bond.

Step 9: Retain records

A file of all written documents required by Chapter 30B must be maintained for a period of six years from the date of final payment under a contract. These documents include the following:

- the invitation for bids, including any amendments;
- the justification (if any) for use of proprietary specifications;
- the public notice and advertisement;
- the Goods and Services Bulletin notice if the contract is for $100,000 or more;

- the record of the bid opening (either the minutes of the open meeting, the signed statement of the procurement officer and witnesses, or a certified copy of the minutes or signed statement);
- all bids received, including the certified statement of each bidder that the bid was made in good faith;
- any bid corrections, modifications, withdrawals, and notices of bid corrections, modifications, or withdrawals;
- any notices of bid rejections or cancellation;
- the notice of award; and
- the executed contract.

The contents of the bid file must be open to public inspection.²⁸

CHAPTER 5

Supply and Service Contracts

$25,000 or More:

Proposals

Bidding is the basic method under Chapter 30B for procuring supply and service contracts of $25,000 or more. However, when it is in your local government's best interest to do so, you may instead use the request for proposals (RFP) process to award such contracts.²⁹ The RFP process permits you to weigh the relative merits of proposals submitted by competing offerors. You award the contract to the offeror submitting the most advantageous proposal, taking into consideration the proposals' relative merits and prices. Unlike the bidding process, the RFP process may not always result in selection of the qualified proposer offering the lowest price. While service contracts may seem at first glance to be most suited to the RFP process, many service contracts can and should be bid. See Chapter 2 of this manual for more information on deciding between bids or proposals.

You can only use RFPs if your local government has appointed a Chief Procurement Officer (CPO). Only your CPO or someone with delegated authority from the CPO may solicit proposals. (Chapter 2 has more information on CPO's and delegations.) If you have questions, check with your CPO (if you have one) or local counsel.

Chapter 2 reviewed the first steps involved in procuring supplies and services: determining what you need, writing a purchase description (specification, scope of services), developing contract terms and conditions, and estimating the value of the contract. You may want to review that information before proceeding into this chapter, which reviews the specific steps involved in soliciting competitive sealed proposals. This discussion assumes you are the Chief Procurement Officer or someone with delegated authority.

²⁹ The exceptions are school bus transportation contracts and construction contracts. Under M.G.L. c. 71, §7A, you must bid school bus transportation contracts. See Chapter 9 for a discussion of construction contracts.

Step 1: Document your decision to use the RFP process

If you decide that the RFP process is preferable for a given procurement, you must document your decision, along with the reasons for it, in writing. For example, in determining that the RFP process should be used to procure consultant services to assess a city's health coverage requirements, it would not be sufficient to state: "I have determined that the RFP process for this procurement will be most advantageous for the city." Your written rationale must specify the reasons for your determination that your jurisdiction's interests will be served by a process that allows you to select a proposal that exceeds your quality requirements and does not offer you the lowest price. For example, you might state that "the RFP process will enable the city to provide higher ratings to consultants whose key project personnel have extensive experience providing similar services to other cities and towns."

Step 2: Prepare the RFP

Your RFP contains all of the information proposers will need to prepare a responsive proposal. An RFP consists of the following major components:

- purchase description or scope of services;
- plan of services requirement, if any;
- evaluation criteria
 - a. quality requirements
 - b. comparative evaluation criteria
 - c. best price
- documents incorporated by reference, if any
- contract terms and conditions
- standard forms, and
- proposal submission requirements

Chapter 2 provides information on developing a purchase description and contract terms and conditions. The remaining elements of the RFP are discussed below.³⁰

Plan of services. When using the RFP process, you have the option of requiring vendors to include a “plan of services” in their proposals. The contents of a plan of services must be evaluated as part of the proposal evaluation process, and elements of the proposed plan may be negotiated with the proposer.

In essence, the plan of services contains specifics as to how the proposer will satisfy the purchase description (scope of services). It is not a substitute for a complete purchase description. Rather, it is a tool you can use to evaluate each proposer’s plan for meeting your objectives: Does the proposer offer the right methodology and resources to best meet your needs? In most cases, it will probably be unnecessary to require a plan of services, but you do have the option to do so when you believe it would benefit your jurisdiction.

For instance, if you seek proposals for the management and operation of a municipal facility, you might decide to require each proposer to submit a plan of services containing a detailed organization chart showing the chain of command, written job descriptions for the key personnel who will be assigned to the contract, a description of the automated systems the proposer will use to fulfill reporting and record-keeping functions, and a proposed schedule for major maintenance activities. You will later evaluate the plan and you can negotiate with the proposer for changes in the plan to ensure that your objectives are met under the final contract. The final plan will be incorporated into the contract.

³⁰ You may also wish to consult our Office’s Practical Guide to Drafting Effective Invitations for Bids and Requests for Proposals for Supplies and Services which may be obtained from Inspector General’s Office’s website at <http://www.state.ma.us/ig>.

If you require proposers to submit a plan of services, your RFP must specify the information to be included in the plan. You may also specify a format and set limits on the length.

Evaluation criteria. Defining the criteria that you will use to evaluate the proposals you receive is just as important as describing what you intend to purchase. You want to (1) determine which proposers meet your quality requirements, (2) compare the advantages each proposal offers relative to your comparative criteria, and (3) compare the prices the proposers offer and determine which is the best price. All the criteria you will use must be included in your RFP; you may not evaluate proposals against any other evaluation criteria. Be careful to ensure that the evaluation criteria in the RFP reflect the full range of standards you want to apply to the proposals you receive. The advantage of this approach is clear: you maximize the likelihood of receiving responsive proposals, geared to the needs of your jurisdiction. The more information you provide to proposers about the target at which their proposals are aimed, the greater the likelihood that their proposals will be “on target.”

Quality requirements. Your quality requirements reflect those standards or attributes that you consider essential to satisfactory performance of the contract. You will use quality requirements to identify responsive proposals (those that offer all of the supplies or services requested in the RFP and contain all of the required information and forms properly completed) and responsible proposers (those with the capability, integrity, and reliability to perform under the contract).

Your quality requirements are yes-or-no standards that you will apply to every proposal. Does the proposer meet each quality requirement? If the answer is yes, the proposal remains under consideration. If the answer is no, the proposal is eliminated from further consideration. If the nature of the work to be performed under the contract demands that the contractor possess a very high level of qualifications and training, then you should set very rigorous quality requirements. However, if you set a higher standard than you truly need, you will reduce the pool of qualified proposers and, in all likelihood, pay more than you should for the supply or service.

For example, in selecting a consultant to evaluate your jurisdiction's health coverage requirements, you might determine that only consultants who have successfully completed at least three contracts providing health coverage consulting to a private or public client of similar size are qualified to submit proposals. If you include this criterion in the RFP, you must reject all proposals submitted by consultants who do not meet the standard, since, by your own definition, such consultants are not qualified to perform the work. As this example illustrates, it is important that your quality requirements truly reflect the standards or qualifications necessary to perform the work.

Comparative evaluation criteria. At this point in the RFP development process, you have established your quality requirements to identify the responsive proposals submitted by responsible proposers.

You do not have to use all four rating categories. You have flexibility to use a rating scheme that makes sense in the context of your RFP. For example, if you merely want to distinguish proposals that offer one particular extra service from those that do not, you could simply use "advantageous" for those that do, and "not advantageous" for those that do not.

Now you need to define the comparative evaluation criteria to be applied to all proposals that meet your quality requirements. In effect, comparative evaluation criteria reflect standards or attributes for which you might be willing to spend more money.

Your RFP must identify each comparative criterion you will use; make them as specific as possible and tie them as closely as you can to the tasks contained in the purchase description. Do not use vaguely worded phrases such as "past

You may not substitute numerical ratings for the qualitative ratings. Point systems are often deceptive, creating the illusion that qualitative judgments can be compared with mathematical precision. Point differences may actually reflect small, inconsequential differences between proposals.

performance" or "creativity of approach," which provide little guidance either to competitors who submit proposals or to those responsible for evaluating the proposals received. Remember that the more specificity you provide, the more likely you are to receive good proposals offering the supplies or services you want. If you are vague, you will not establish a level field for the competition, and your RFP will be subject to challenge.

For each comparative criterion, you should also specify what standard a proposer must meet to achieve a rating of “highly advantageous,” “advantageous,” “not advantageous,” or “unacceptable.” You have flexibility in defining the ratings to best meet your evaluation needs, and you need not include all four rating categories in your RFP if you do not need them all. In fact, the fewer categories you use, the easier it will be to develop the RFP and later evaluate proposals. Examples of comparative evaluation criteria ratings are provided on the next page.

Examples of Comparative Evaluation Criteria Ratings

Example 1: Training. You want to hire a firm to train employees on workplace safety. As one evaluation criterion, you decide to compare the completeness and clarity of training materials developed by each firm that meets your quality requirements. In effect, you believe that it may be worth paying more for better training materials. You require firms to submit three samples of workbooks or other training aids used in workplace safety management training delivered to public agencies.

Criterion: Clarity and completeness of sample training materials.

Highly advantageous: All three samples are written clearly and fully cover the subject matter and excel with respect to use of graphics, formats, and writing style.

Advantageous: All three samples are written clearly and fully cover the subject matter.

Not advantageous: One sample is not written clearly or does not fully cover the subject matter, or both.

Unacceptable: At least two samples are not written clearly or do not fully cover the subject matter, or both.

Example 2: Computer Software. You are buying municipal finance software. One comparative criterion is ease of staff use, which you will judge based on an on-site demonstration of the system at one municipal installation.

Criterion: Ease of use.

Highly advantageous: Application screens are clear and set up logically. Fields can be accessed easily and quickly. Multiple screens are logically sequenced and can be quickly accessed from other relevant screens. Users with minimal training and experience can quickly learn to navigate the system with training of one-half day or less.

Advantageous: Application screens are generally clear and set up logically. Fields can be accessed easily and quickly. Multiple screens are logically sequenced but must be accessed by going through a series of screens. Users with minimal training and experience are likely to require more than a one-half day training workshop.

Unacceptable: Application screens are unclear and not set up logically.

If you find in developing the evaluation criteria for a specific procurement that you really have no need for comparative criteria – i.e., you plan to select the best offer from the pool of vendors meeting your proposal submission requirements and quality requirements – then the RFP process is inappropriate for the procurement. Instead, you should solicit competitive sealed bids in accordance with the procedures set forth in Chapter 4 of this manual.

Best price. The RFP must inform proposers of the method you will use to compare prices and determine the “best” proposal price. Where the contract will require the contractor to pay your jurisdiction, the best price is the highest price. Where the contract will require the contractor to pay your jurisdiction, the best price is the highest price. In many cases, identifying the best price is straightforward, as when proposers submit a single dollar figure with their proposal. In other cases, however, some calculation may be required.

If you are awarding a multi-year contract, you must specify whether a single price should be proposed for the entire contract term. If not, you must indicate how you will calculate which proposal offers the best price.

Documents incorporated by reference. If you incorporate documents by reference into the RFP, you must specify where proposers may obtain these documents.

Standard forms. Chapter 30B requires each proposer to certify that the proposal was made in good faith and without collusion or fraud.³¹ It is a good idea to include a copy of the non-collusion form in your RFP to ensure compliance with this requirement. A sample non-collusion form is included in Appendix B.

Typically, proposers also are required to complete other standard forms, including a proposal price sheet. Any standard forms should be included in the RFP.

Proposal submission requirements. The RFP must specify when (date and time) and where sealed proposals must be delivered. You must require proposers to submit separate sealed price and non-price (or technical) proposals. Also, you must specify the maximum amount of time you reserve to award a contract. Provide instructions on how to mark proposal packages and how to correct, modify, or withdraw proposals.

Step 3: Provide public notice of the RFP

Weigh the pressure to award a contract quickly against the need to maximize competition. Shorter periods of time may favor a vendor who has held the contract in the past, or simply eliminate potential competitors.

You must give public notice of an RFP a reasonable time prior to the date for the opening of proposals.³² The notice must be published at least two weeks before proposals are due. Otherwise, what is “reasonable” depends on the nature of the RFP. The more complex the proposal, or the more items or services included in the proposal, the more time proposers may need to prepare their proposals. Availability of qualified proposers may also affect the RFP schedule. If you will need to search for and encourage proposers, you should allow extra time.

The public notice must contain the following information:

- a statement of where, when, and for how long the RFP may be obtained
- a description of the supply or service desired (i.e., a summary of the detailed purchase description included in the RFP);
- a notice that your jurisdiction reserves the right to reject any or all proposals; and
- an identification of any board, committee, commission or other body which must approve the contract.

You may include other information in the notice. For example, if you have decided to establish a charge for copies of the RFP, indicate the amount of the charge and the form in which it may be paid.

³² M.G.L. c. 30B, §6(c).

You must post the notice in a conspicuous place in or near your jurisdiction's offices until the time specified in the RFP for receipt of proposals (a minimum of two weeks). If your jurisdiction has an official bulletin board, that is where the notice should be posted.

You must publish the notice at least once, not less than two weeks prior to the time specified for the receipt of proposals, in at least one newspaper of general circulation within the area served by your jurisdiction.³³ You may, of course, publish the notice in more than one newspaper in your area, in newspapers outside your area, and more than once. You may wish to do additional advertising for a major or specialized procurement.

If the contract value will be $100,000 or more, you must also publish a notice in the Goods and Services Bulletin published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.³⁴ A form for this purpose is included in Appendix B.

You may contact vendors to let them know about the RFP. If you maintain vendors lists for contracts, you may send a copy of the notice or the RFP to those vendors on the list who might be interested in the particular contract. You may also simply call vendors to encourage proposals. However, be careful to avoid favoritism or the appearance of favoritism.

Step 4: Distribute the RFP

You must make the RFP available on an equal basis to all who request a copy. If you charge vendors a fee for copies of the RFP, you must charge all vendors. Keep a record of all vendors who receive the RFP. If you later issue an addendum to the RFP, send the addendum to all those who have already received the RFP. To avoid misunderstandings or protests, include a requirement in the RFP that vendors acknowledge in writing their receipt of any addenda. Also, if vendors are likely to require additional time to respond to the addendum, extend the proposal due date.

³³ The Secretary of the Commonwealth has granted the City of Boston permission to publish a periodical listing contract opportunities as a substitute for advertising in a newspaper.

³⁴ You must mail, fax, or email your notice to the Goods and Services Bulletin, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; E-mail: regs@sec.state.ma.us; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Bulletin.

Step 5: Designate the individual(s) responsible for evaluating proposals

You must select one or more individuals to evaluate the non-price, or technical, proposals. You may, as other jurisdictions have done, use staff of the department that will be using the supplies or services to evaluate proposals. These employees often have the expertise to understand complicated technical proposals. Some jurisdictions ask members of relevant boards to sit on their evaluation committees.³⁵ You need not limit committee membership to employees of the jurisdiction; for example, you may employ an independent consultant to participate on your evaluation committee.³⁶

Step 6: Receive the sealed price and non-price proposals

Be prepared to receive separate, sealed price and non-price proposals after you issue the RFP. You must maintain a register of proposals received. It is good practice to note on the sealed price and non-price proposal packages the date and time they were received, and to provide proposers with receipts for their proposals upon request.

Prior to the non-price proposal opening, a proposer may correct, modify or withdraw the proposal (non-price and price) by following the instructions you provided in the RFP. A proposer who wishes to withdraw a proposal must make the request in writing. Any correction or modification to a proposal must be submitted in writing. Because the original proposals must be submitted as sealed packages, the RFP should require that corrections or modifications also be sealed when submitted.

³⁵ Avoid using a board or a quorum of a board's members as an evaluation committee. There is a potential for dispute about the conflict between the requirement for open meetings of boards under M.G.L. c. 39, §23B and the requirement to keep non-price proposals confidential until Chapter 30B evaluations are completed and price proposals are opened.

³⁶ Remember that the contract with the independent consultant is itself subject to Chapter 30B requirements.

If a proposer or its agent delivers a late proposal, you may not accept it. If you do receive such a proposal, you should note the time of receipt and return the proposal package unopened to the proposer, along with an explanation of the reason for rejection.

You may not accept a correction or modification delivered late, either. If you do receive such a late correction or modification, you should treat it as a late proposal and evaluate only the original proposal that was received by the deadline.

Step 7: Open and register the proposals

You may not open the proposals publicly. The proposal contents are to be kept confidential and not disclosed to competing proposers until the evaluation process is completed or until the time for acceptance specified in the RFP, whichever occurs first.

You must separate the price and non-price proposals. The non-price, or technical proposals, must be opened at the time specified in the RFP in the presence of one or more witnesses. At the time of the opening, you must prepare and make available for public inspection a register of proposals, which includes the name of each proposer and the number of proposal modifications submitted by each proposer. You should also record the name(s) of the witness(es).

You may open the price proposals immediately after opening the technical proposals or at a later time. However, be sure that you do not disclose the price proposals to the non-price proposal evaluator(s) until they have completed their evaluations. The separation of technical and price proposals is an important element of the RFP process. The process is structured to allow an orderly, fair comparison of the proposals.

A proposal may be withdrawn after it has been opened only if a mistake is clearly evident on the face of the document, but the intended correct answer is not evident. For example, if a proposer incorrectly multiplied unit prices by estimated quantities and added the incorrect subtotals to arrive at a total price, the mistake would be evident but the intended proposal would not.

Step 8: Evaluate non-price proposals

Evaluate proposals efficiently. If you determine that a proposal is nonresponsive or a proposer is not responsible, you can eliminate that proposal from further consideration. You do not need to take the extra time to evaluate these proposals according to your other criteria.

Proposal evaluations must be based solely on the criteria set forth in the RFP. The non-price proposal evaluator(s) must examine each proposal to determine whether it meets all of the proposal submission requirements and quality requirements specified in the RFP. Any proposal that fails to comply with the proposal submission requirements or fails to meet any of your quality requirements for responsiveness and responsibility must be eliminated from the competition.

In determining the responsiveness of a proposal, you must waive minor informalities or allow the proposer to correct them. According to Chapter 30B, minor informalities are “minor deviations, insignificant mistakes, and matters of form rather than substance of the [proposal] . . . which can be waived or corrected without prejudice to other offerors, potential offerors, or the governmental body.”³⁷

You may not arbitrarily “shortlist” proposals. You are using proposals instead of bids because you determined that it is in the best interest of your jurisdiction to compare proposals on more than price. You must fully evaluate all responsive and responsible proposals that meet your quality requirements and assign each one an overall rating.

You must correct a proposal if a mistake and the intended offer are clearly evident on the face of the proposal document. In such a case, you must make the correction and notify the proposer in writing; the proposer must not be permitted to withdraw.

A proposer may not impose any conditions on a proposal, or change the price or any other provision of a proposal, in a manner prejudicial to the interests of your jurisdiction or fair competition.

³⁷ M.G.L. c. 30B, §2.

You must assign a rating for each comparative evaluation criterion in each proposal. Taking each individual comparative criterion rating into consideration, you assign each proposal a composite rating of “highly advantageous,” “advantageous,” “not advantageous,” or “unacceptable.”

Your written proposal evaluations must show the rating assigned for each comparative evaluation criterion, the reasons for each rating, a composite rating of each proposal, and the reasons for the composite rating.³⁸ Of course, your composite ratings must rationally reflect the underlying ratings for each criterion. For example: all “advantageous” ratings would not generally warrant a “highly advantageous” composite rating.

Your written explanation is the place to provide further information on the proposal characteristics to help guide the final selection. Is the proposal vastly superior to all others for this criterion, and therefore worth a substantial cost premium? What attributes of a proposal makes it warrant a “highly advantageous” composite rating? How does it compare to other “highly advantageous” proposals? For example, if the “highly advantageous” proposal is only marginally better than those you rated “advantageous,” communicate this judgment to the decision-maker.

The more qualitative information you provide in the written explanations accompanying the proposal ratings, the better equipped the decision maker will be to weigh the ratings you have assigned to the non-price proposals against the proposal prices to identify the most advantageous proposal overall.

After proposals have been assigned ratings on the basis of each evaluation criterion, evaluators should assign composite ratings to the proposals. The written explanation accompanying each composite rating must state the reasons for each composite rating.

³⁸ If you wish to recommend that revisions to the proposal’s plan for providing the supplies or services be obtained by negotiation prior to awarding a contract to the proposer, such recommended revisions should also be part of the written explanations accompanying the ratings. See Step 11 of this chapter for more information on the negotiation process.

With one exception, your ratings may not be conditioned on negotiating changes to the proposal. The exception applies if you have required proposers to submit a plan of services. An example of a contract for which you may want to require a plan of services is provided on the next page.

Step 9: Evaluate price proposals

You will evaluate the price proposals following the method you specified in the RFP to determine the best proposal price. The price evaluation can be performed while non-price proposals are being evaluated as long as the prices are not disclosed to the individuals responsible for evaluating the non-price proposals.

As with non-price proposals, you must waive minor informalities³⁹ or allow the proposer to correct them. For example, the omission of a unit price figure is a minor deviation that must be waived if the intended figure is readily ascertainable from other figures in the proposal.

You must correct a price proposal if a mistake and the intended offer are clearly evident on the face of the proposal document. In such a case, you must make the correction and notify the proposer in writing; the proposer must not be permitted to withdraw.

³⁹ Minor informalities are “minor deviations, insignificant mistakes, and matters of form rather than substance of the [proposal] . . . which can be waived or corrected without prejudice to other offerors, potential offerors, or the governmental body.” M.G.L. c. 30B, §2.

Evaluating a Proposer's Plan of Services

A plan of services is a detailed plan describing how the proposer will provide the needed services. For most contracts, you do not need this level of detail and you should not require proposers to submit a plan of services. In general, it makes more sense to spell out the performance measures or the deliverables required and to evaluate proposers based on their qualifications and track records, rather than to attempt to evaluate exactly how they propose to get the job done.

For an unusually complex contract, you may want to evaluate the staffing plan, the methodology, or other specific information about how each proposer intends to meet the contract requirements; for such a contract you may require a plan of services. In evaluating a plan of services, you should specify the rating for each criterion on the basis of the plan presented in the proposal; you may also specify what the improved rating would be if specific changes are negotiated.

Example: You have issued an RFP for a contract to manage and operate a municipal golf course. The RFP requires each proposer to submit a plan of services which consists of an organizational chart with the name, position, and resume of each individual who will be employed full-time under the contract with overall responsibility in each of the following areas: financial management, golf pro services, and groundskeeping services.

The RFP specifies the rating scheme for this plan of services with respect to each of the key positions. The rating scheme for the individual identified as having overall responsibility for financial management is as follows:

Criterion: Qualifications and experience in financial management.

Advantageous: Four or more years in a position of overall financial management responsibility for an operation at least comparable in size and complexity to the golf course and at least a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Not advantageous: At least one year but less than four years in a position of overall financial management responsibility for an operation at least comparable in size and complexity to the golf course and at least an associate's degree in accounting.

Unacceptable: Less than one year in a position of overall financial management responsibility for an operation at least comparable in size and complexity to the golf course or less than an associate's degree in accounting.

The evaluation committee reviews a proposal that is rated advantageous in all other categories but has proposed a financial manager with only three years' experience. The evaluators may recommend negotiating a change in staffing to replace the individual slated for this position with a more experienced financial manager. In this case, the proposal as submitted would earn a "not advantageous" rating on this criterion, but the evaluators would specify that the rating will change to "advantageous" if the proposer agrees to place an individual with four or more years' experience and at least a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Step 10: Identify the most advantageous proposal

You must identify the most advantageous proposal taking into consideration the proposal evaluations and the proposal prices. The decision may be easy when, for example, the lowest-priced proposal received the highest overall ratings, or all proposals received the same rating and the differences are so insignificant that you decide to go with the lowest-priced.

In other cases, you will have to carefully consider whether it is worthwhile for your jurisdiction to spend more money to contract for a better proposal. For example, if one proposal is rated “highly advantageous” and has a higher price tag than the lowest-priced “advantageous” proposal, you need to determine which proposal best meets the needs of your jurisdiction.⁴⁰ The extra benefits afforded by the “highly advantageous” proposal may not be worth the cost premium you would incur by selecting that proposal; then again, it may be. There is no mechanical process for making the tradeoff.

Step 11: Negotiate changes to the plan of services (if any)

You may condition the contract award on successful negotiation of revisions to the plan of services identified by the evaluator(s) during the proposal evaluation phase of the process. The scope of these negotiations is limited to the plan of services; the RFP specifications, scope of services, contract terms, are non-negotiable.

If the RFP did not require proposers to submit a plan of services, or if the evaluators identified no recommended changes in the plan of services included in the proposal deemed “most advantageous” by the CPO, there is nothing to negotiate.

⁴⁰ If revisions to a proposal’s plan of services would result in its selection as most advantageous, taking into consideration the proposal evaluations and prices, you may select the proposal conditioned upon satisfactory negotiations to incorporate the recommended revisions.

Step 12: Award the contract

Notice of the award decision should be given to the selected proposer within the time for acceptance that you specified in the RFP. The time for acceptance may be extended for up to 45 days by mutual agreement between the jurisdiction and the responsive and responsible proposer offering the most advantageous offer as determined by the CPO. If you do not award the contract to the responsive and responsible proposer offering the best price, you must prepare a written explanation of your reasons and detail your basis for determining that the quality of supplies or services under the contract will not exceed your needs. For example:

The lowest-priced proposal received a composite rating of “not advantageous” because the sample training materials were poorly written and lacked specific step-by-step instructions to guide those being trained. I have determined that the cost savings offered by this proposal do not compensate for the lower quality of this proposer’s training materials in comparison with the training materials provided by other proposers. Therefore, I am awarding this contract to the next lowest-priced proposal that received a composite rating of “advantageous” and will provide us with more effective training materials.

Sometimes a contract will require payment of a monetary sum to your jurisdiction. For example, you might award an auditorium management contract under which the management firm pays you a monthly fee and retains the auditorium revenues. If you award the contract to anyone other than the proposer submitting the highest price, you must explain in writing the reasons for the award.

If you did not include in the contract a revision to the plan of services recommended by the evaluator(s), you must explain in writing the reasons for omitting the revision from the plan of services, as the plan will be incorporated by reference into the contract.

Step 13: Execute the contract

After you notify the successful proposer of the award, execute a written contract containing all the terms and conditions stated in the RFP. You may not change the terms and conditions of the contract.

If you are unsure about who has the appropriate authority to sign the contract, consult with your local counsel.

If the successful proposer refuses to execute the contract: You may award the contract to the proposer you determine to have offered the next most advantageous proposal provided you are still within the time for acceptance specified in your RFP, or the time period has been extended by mutual agreement of the parties. Discuss with your local counsel what action should be taken against the recalcitrant proposer. If the proposer posted a bond, consider attempting to collect against the bond.

Step 14: Retain records

A file of all written documents required by Chapter 30B must be maintained for a period of six years from the date of final payment under a contract. These documents include the following:

- the written rationale for the decision to use an RFP;
- the RFP, including any amendments;
- any justification for use of proprietary specifications;
- the public advertisement;
- the Goods and Services Bulletin notice if contract is for $100,000 or more;
- the register of proposals;
- all proposals received, including the certified statement of each proposer that the proposal was made in good faith;
- any proposal corrections, modifications, withdrawals, and notices of bid corrections, modifications, or withdrawals;
- any notices of proposal rejections or cancellation;
- the individual and composite proposal ratings and written explanations;

- the written rationale for the contract award, if the contract was not awarded to the proposer submitting the best price;
- any written rationale for omitting recommended revisions to the plan of services as incorporated into the contract;
- the notice of the contract award; and
- the executed contract.

The contents of the proposal file must be open to public inspection.⁴¹

CHAPTER 6

Supply and Service Contracts: Special Cases and Contract Increases

This chapter reviews three unique and limited methods for awarding supply and service contracts under Chapter 30B: sole-source procurements; emergency procurements; and exercising contract options to renew, extend, or purchase. This chapter also reviews increases in the quantity of supplies or services specified in a contract.

Sole Source Procurements

A “sole source” procurement means a purchase of supplies or services without advertising or competition. Chapter 30B places strict limitations on sole-source procurements.

You can accept a single quotation, bid, or proposal submitted in response to a proper solicitation of quotations, IFB, or RFP. Receiving one response is not the same as making a sole-source procurement.

Contracts under $25,000

You may make sole-source procurements of any supply or service under $25,000 when a reasonable investigation shows that there is only one practicable source for the required supply or service. Your determination that only one practicable source exists must be in writing.

Contracts of $25,000 or more

You may not make a sole-source procurement of $25,000 or more except for the following:

- Educational materials, library books, and software maintenance: You may make noncompetitive purchases in any amount for library books; school textbooks; educational programs, courses, or curricula in any media including educational software; newspapers; serials; periodicals; audiovisual materials; or software maintenance *if you determine in writing, after reasonable investigation, that there is only one practicable source for the items.*⁴²

⁴² M.G.L. c. 30B, §7(a).

- Utilities: You may purchase certain utility services in any amount without competition if you determine in writing that there is only one practicable source for the services.⁴³

Record-keeping

You must maintain a written record of every sole-source procurement, specifying the contractor's name, the amount and type of contract awarded, a listing of the supplies or services procured, and the basis for your determination that there was only one practicable source for the purchase.

Emergency Procurements

If the time required to comply fully with a Chapter 30B requirement would endanger the health or safety of people or property due to an unforeseen emergency, you may procure the needed item or service without complying with the Chapter 30B requirement. Even under emergency circumstances, however, you must comply with Chapter 30B to the extent possible. For example, if you do not have time to advertise for two weeks, you can shorten the advertising period; or, if you have no time to advertise, you can solicit quotations. You may procure only those supplies or services necessary to meet the emergency.⁴⁴

You must maintain a record of each emergency procurement, documenting the basis for determining that an emergency exists, the name of the vendor, the amount and type of contract, and a list of the supplies or services purchased under each contract. We recommend that you also include in your record all procedures followed to elicit competition. Your record of an emergency procurement must be submitted as soon as possible to the Goods and Services Bulletin for publication.⁴⁵

⁴³ M.G.L. c. 30B, §7(c).

⁴⁴ M.G.L. c. 30B, §8.

⁴⁵ A sample emergency procurement form is at Appendix B of this manual. You must mail, fax, or e-mail your notice to the Goods and Services Bulletin, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; E-mail: regs@sec.state.ma.us; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Bulletin.

A jurisdiction cannot artificially create an emergency by postponing normal purchases.⁴⁶ If you had reason to know in advance that you needed the supplies or services, and you failed to act until the need became critical, you will have difficulty justifying an emergency procurement. Invoking the emergency procedures in the absence of a genuine emergency could invalidate your contract.

Exercising Options to Extend, Renew, or Purchase

Chapter 30B places strict limits on contract extension, renewal, and purchase options.⁴⁷ You may only exercise an extension, renewal, or purchase option if the option terms were advertised in the original IFB or RFP, and the contract provides your jurisdiction with sole discretion, without the consent of the contractor, to exercise the option.

Before exercising any renewal, extension, or purchase option, you must determine whether it is more advantageous to your jurisdiction to exercise the option or to undertake a new procurement.⁴⁸ To make this determination, you must conduct a reasonable investigation of the cost and benefits and document your findings in writing. A reasonable investigation must establish that the prices you will pay after exercising the option or renewing the contract are reasonable under current market conditions. You may consider conducting a formal, advertised competition for the term of the extension or renewal. Then, if you receive no better bid or proposal, you can exercise the contract option.

Contract Increases

During the course of a contract term, you may find that you need to increase the quantity of supplies or services specified in your contract. For example, you may have contracted for 12 computers but later receive additional funds to purchase an additional computer.

⁴⁶ See Safford v. Lowell, 255 Mass. 220 (1926).

⁴⁷ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12.

⁴⁸ M.G.L. c. 30B, §12(e).

Chapter 30B permits you to increase the quantity of supplies or services specified in your contract provided the following four conditions are met:

- the unit prices remain the same or less;
- the procurement officer documents in writing that an increase is necessary to fulfill the actual needs of the jurisdiction and is more economical and practical than awarding another contract;
- the parties agree to the increase in writing, and
- the increase in quantity does not exceed 25 percent.

A small number of contracts are not subject to the 25 percent limitation on increases: contracts for the purchase of gasoline, special fuel, fuel oil, road salt or other ice and snow control supplies. For these contracts, you may increase the quantity by more than 25 percent; however, you must still meet the other three conditions.

CHAPTER 7

Disposal of Surplus Supplies

Chapter 30B sets out procedures to ensure that you obtain the best possible return when you dispose of supplies that are no longer useful to your jurisdiction.⁴⁹ These rules apply to all tangible surplus supplies including motor vehicles, machinery, computer equipment, furniture, and other materials and supplies. The term “supplies” does not include real property.

You may dispose of surplus supplies with an estimated net value of less than $5,000 using any method allowed under written procedures established by your jurisdiction. Such procedures might, for example, allow you to hold a yard sale to sell the items.

For supplies with a resale or salvage value of $5,000 or more, you can use any of three alternate methods of sale: (1) sealed bids, (2) public auction,⁵⁰ or (3) an established market. An “established market” is one in which commodities are regularly sold in wholesale lots and prices are set by open competition. As a practical matter, this option will rarely be available, and you will almost always sell supplies via sealed bids or auctions.

You can swap surplus supplies with another jurisdiction. A transaction like this would be exempt from Chapter 30B as an intergovernmental agreement.

You can advertise and bid multiple surplus supplies together. This will make sense when you are disposing of supplies that fall into the same category, such as office equipment. You have the option of accepting a lump sum offer on a package of supplies or accepting the highest bid on each individual item, whichever will yield the best price. For example, if you receive separate offers on three items and a lump sum offer which is higher than the sum of the highest bid on each item, then you can accept the lump sum offer.

⁴⁹ M.G.L. c. 30B, §15.

⁵⁰ Police departments must auction unclaimed property pursuant to M.G.L. c. 135, §8.

You may also trade in supplies when making new purchases. Or, if approved by a majority vote of the governing body in your jurisdiction, you may donate surplus supplies to a charitable organization.

Sale by Bid or Auction

The following steps apply to the sale of surplus supplies by either soliciting bids or holding a public auction:

Step 1: Prepare a notice of sale

The notice must include the following information:

- a complete description of the surplus supplies offered (you may refer to other documents that provide detailed information if you specify where bidders may obtain those documents);
- when, where, and how the surplus supplies can be inspected by the public prior to the bid opening or auction;
- all terms and conditions of the sale, such as any deposit required to participate in the bid or auction, any minimum bid amount, the form of payment required, the rules governing the bid or auction, and the time by which the supplies must be removed after the purchase;
- the place and deadline for submitting bids, and the place, date, and time for the bid opening or auction;
- a statement that you retain the right to reject any and all bids;

Every bid must be accompanied by a signed non-collusion form. (A non-collusion form is contained in Appendix B.)

Step 2: Advertise the sale

You must advertise the sale of all supplies greater than $5,000 in value by both posting a notice of sale for at least two weeks in a conspicuous place at your offices, and publishing the notice of sale not less than two weeks prior to the bid opening or auction in a newspaper of general circulation in your jurisdiction.⁵¹ If the supplies you are selling have an estimated value of $100,000 or more, you must also publish a notice in the Goods and Services Bulletin published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.⁵² You may send copies of the notice to anyone who might be interested after it has been posted and published.

Step 3: Open the bids or hold the auction

If you have solicited sealed bids, open the bids in public. You must reject any bid that is nonresponsive: one that does not conform to the terms and conditions set forth in your notice of sale or bid documents.

If you believe bids are too low, you can reject all bids and readvertise or negotiate the sale. If you decide to negotiate a sale, the sale price must be higher than the highest bid price you received. (If you received no bids in response to your advertisement, the highest bid price would be zero.)

If you hold an auction, it must be open to the public. You may want to confer with or use the services of a professional auctioneer. (A service contract with an auctioneer would also be subject to Chapter 30B.) The auction must, of course, be conducted in conformity with the rules spelled out in the notice of sale.

Step 4: Record the sale or execute a sales agreement

The surplus supply or supplies must be sold to the highest responsive bidder in conformity with all the terms and conditions spelled out in the notice of sale. However, you may reject all bids. If the successful bidder takes possession of the supply on the spot, a record of the transaction should be made and the purchaser should sign a written acknowledgement of receipt of the supply. If the supply is to be picked up and paid for later, you should execute a written sales agreement with the successful bidder as soon as you accept the bid.⁵³ The agreement should include the description of the supplies sold, the price, and all conditions of the sale.

⁵¹ The Secretary of the Commonwealth has granted the city of Boston permission to publish a periodical listing contract opportunities as a substitute for advertising in a newspaper.

⁵² You must mail, fax, or e-mail your notice to the Goods and Services Bulletin, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; E-mail: regs@sec.state.ma.us; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Bulletin.

Charitable Donations

You can dispose of surplus supplies at less than fair market value to any organization that has an IRS tax exempt status by reason of its charitable nature. Any such donation must be approved in advance by a majority vote of your jurisdiction, defined as follows:

- for towns or districts: a majority vote taken at a duly called town or district meeting;
- for cities: a majority vote of the city council or the city commissioners, and the approval of the mayor if such approval is required under the city charter;
- for counties: a majority vote of the county commission;
- for regional school districts: an affirmative vote by two-thirds of the members of the school committee; and
- for redevelopment, housing, or other authorities: a majority vote of the governing board.

Trade-ins

Surplus supplies can be traded in when making a purchase. Your IFB or RFP should specify the items to be traded in as part of the procurement. Keep in mind that you may get a better price for surplus supplies from someone other than the offerors responding to the IFB or RFP. It will often be more cost-effective to separate the transactions by selling the surplus supplies through a bid or an auction before or after you have purchased the new supplies.

⁵³ All Chapter 30B contracts in the amount of $5,000 or more must be in writing (M.G.L. c. 30B, §17(a)).

CHAPTER 8

Real Property Transactions

Chapter 30B applies to the purchase, sale, lease, or rental of real property. Chapter 30B establishes procedures which you must follow in acquiring real property by purchase or rental with a cost greater than $25,000, and in disposing of real property by sale or rental with a value greater than $25,000.⁵⁴

Chapter 30B also applies to the acquisition or disposition of other interests in real property such as easements and profits à prendre (for example, the right to remove gravel from land.) The same dollar thresholds apply to these transactions.

The following real property transactions are not subject to Chapter 30B, either because they are specifically exempted or because the transactions are governed by other statutes:

- eminent domain takings;⁵⁵
- rental of residential property to qualified tenants by a housing authority or a community development authority;⁵⁶
- a contract to sell, lease, or acquire residential, institutional, industrial, or commercial real property by a public or quasi-public economic development agency or urban renewal agency engaged in the development and disposition of said real property in accordance with a plan approved by the appropriate authorizing authority;⁵⁷
- redemption or auction of tax title property authorized under the provisions of M.G.L. c. 60;⁵⁸
- a transaction with state government;⁵⁹

⁵⁴ M.G.L. c. 30B, §16.

⁵⁵ See M.G.L. c. 79 for eminent domain procedures.

⁵⁶ M.G.L. c. 30B, §16(h).

⁵⁷ M.G.L. c. 30B, §(1)(b)(25).

⁵⁸ However, any sale of tax title property by other than an auction, including sale after foreclosure, is subject to Chapter 30B. Procedures for tax title takings are set forth in M.G.L. c. 60, §§37 through 60.

⁵⁹ M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(4).

- an agreement between agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, departments, or public instrumentalities of one city or town;⁶⁰
- exercise of an option to purchase forest, agriculture, or recreation land for conservation purposes under M.G.L. c. 61, 61A, or 61B;
- licenses or permits for limited use of real property.

Licenses or permits to use real property are not subject to Chapter 30B. Use of an auditorium for a performance, and of ballfields for baseball games, are typical examples of licenses to use property: the use is temporary and the user does not actually control the property. Such licenses do not convey an interest in the property. However, any transaction that does involve the transfer of an interest is not exempted simply by incorrectly labeling it a license or permit.

Chapter 30B places no restrictions on who may undertake or approve a real property transaction. Any governmental body authorized by law to acquire or dispose of real property may do so. Consult with your local counsel if you have questions about who may conduct real property transactions for your local government.

Chapter 30B allows you to shorten the period for advertising for proposals or dispense with advertising altogether in only two special circumstances: (1) in an emergency, if you determine that the time required would endanger the health or safety of people or property; or (2) for an acquisition, if you determine that advertising for proposals would not benefit your local government because of the unique quality or location of the property you need. Additional information on this topic is presented at the end of this chapter's section on acquisitions.

Under Chapter 30B, you must acquire and dispose of interests in real property that meet the dollar thresholds discussed earlier by soliciting proposals. This means that you must conduct an open and fair competition that places all proposers on common footing, solicit information that will allow manageable and meaningful comparisons of offers, and base your decisions solely on the information you solicited.

⁶⁰ M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(7).

Chapter 30B gives you flexibility in fashioning a proposal process for real property. You may structure your RFP to resemble a bid, whereby you will select the proposer who meets your quality requirements and offers the best price, or to resemble an RFP for supplies or services in which you will also consider the relative merits of the proposals submitted.

The remainder of this chapter presents in two separate sections how to acquire and dispose of real property.

Real Property Acquisition

You must issue a request for proposals to acquire real property by lease or purchase at a cost of more than $25,000. The value of the property is irrelevant to determining whether Chapter 30B applies. For example, you may accept a gift of valuable property without issuing an RFP because the cost is less than $25,000.

If you are leasing space, you determine the value of the acquisition by calculating the lease price over the entire contract term. For example, a three-year office space lease with a monthly rent of $1,000 has an entire contract cost of $36,000; therefore, it must be procured by an advertised RFP.

Step 1: Determine what you need to acquire

As a practical matter, before you acquire any property you must determine what you need. The initial cut at determining your needs may be simple: for example, you need land for a public works yard, a parking lot, or office space. However, consider the details. For example:

- Do you want to purchase the property or lease it?
- How much land or office space is needed? Are you interested in acquiring a set amount, or are you willing to consider offers for more than your minimum needs?
- What level of finish do you want for office space?
- What are your location requirements? Is any area in your jurisdiction acceptable?
- How much parking is needed? Is there access to public transportation?
- Is there wheelchair access?
- Are there any environmental issues relevant to the site?
- Are there any special utility requirements?

⁶² M.G.L. c. 7, §40J, requires filing a disclosure statement with the Commissioner of the Division of Capital Asset Management (DCAM) listing persons with a beneficial interest in any real property transaction involving a public agency regardless of the cost or the value of the real property. A copy of a form for this purpose is at Appendix C.

Once you have identified what you need, check to see whether your local government already owns a suitable property. If you have a real property inventory, consult it. Also consult with department heads and other officials concerning the current and future availability of property to meet your needs.

You should not contract for construction of a building at a cost of more than $25,000 using the Chapter 30B procedures. A contract for the purchase of a building that will be constructed to your specifications may be a public building contract subject to the designer selection and construction bid laws. Chapter 9 briefly reviews information about these laws.

Determining what you need is not the same as identifying the particular parcel or building you want. Although your research may identify one parcel or building which is suitable, you will not know before advertising whether you have found the only property which meets your needs. If you suspect there may only be one suitable parcel or building, consider whether your definition of your needs was unnecessarily restrictive.

Step 2: Develop the RFP

Your RFP provides property owners with the information necessary to prepare and submit a responsive proposal. The major components of an RFP are:

- description of the property and interest required,
- evaluation criteria,
- proposal submission requirements, and
- contract terms and conditions.

Property description. Your RFP should describe what type of property you need and whether you want to acquire property by purchase or lease. You should, at a minimum, identify the following:

- the type and amount of property you need (for example, “20,000 square feet of land”);
- the purpose for which the property is to be used (for example, “a public works yard”);

- any special requirements (for example, “that the property not be adjacent to wetlands or over an aquifer”);
- the method of acquisition, such as a lease or purchase; and
- the planned occupancy date and, if you will lease, the lease term.

You may append other documents (for example, a study of your need for a public works yard) or reference and describe them, and indicate how they may be obtained.

Evaluation criteria. You should indicate how you will select a proposal from among the competing proposals. The process is similar to developing evaluation criteria for supplies or services (described in Chapters 4 and 5). You should establish:

- criteria to evaluate responsiveness (whether the proposer agrees to provide property that meets your specifications and whether the proposal contains all the required documents and forms properly completed) and responsibility (whether the proposer has the capability, reliability, and integrity to perform under the contract);
- comparative criteria if you decide that you want to look at the relative merits of the property proposals rather than just selecting the responsive and responsible proposal that offers the best price; and
- a method to evaluate prices.

You may establish any rating scheme that preserves open and fair competition, keeps proposers on a common footing, and allows manageable and meaningful comparisons. You have the option to use the same rating categories that are used in Chapter 30B RFPs for supplies and services: highly advantageous, advantageous, not advantageous, and unacceptable.

The box on the next page illustrates two alternate methods of using evaluation criteria in real property acquisitions. The first is, in effect, a bid process through which you will acquire property by selecting the lowest-priced proposal meeting your defined requirements. The second is a proposal process in which you may select a higher-priced proposal because of advantages of the higher-priced property.

Real Property Acquisitions: Evaluation Criteria Examples

Example 1: Parking Lot. Your jurisdiction has a shortage of public parking in the central business district. You have decided to purchase land to accommodate between 100 and 150 standard-sized parking spaces. You have obtained an engineering estimate for the cost of paving, painting, and installing meters. Your criteria for a suitable site are: minimum square footage, suitable grade and drainage, and located within a one-half mile radius from a particular governmental office.

All of your criteria are stated as quality requirements, so you can evaluate all of the proposals that meet your criteria on the basis of price per parking space. If you want to consider proposals for paved and unpaved sites, you will add the cost of paving to any proposal offering an unpaved site when you compare prices.

This proposal process resembles a bidding process in which you will select the lowest priced responsive and responsible proposal. This method of evaluating proposals is the simplest and most straightforward. You must be sure, however, to include all of your quality requirements in your RFP.

Example 2: Office Space. You need to acquire office space and have decided that a five-year lease would best meet your immediate needs and preserve your long-term options.

You prepare an RFP that incorporates all of your requirements for space needs, accessibility, improvements, and amenities. You establish the following criteria for location:

- within your jurisdiction in an area zoned for commercial use, and
- within four blocks of public transportation.

You also establish comparative criteria to identify the features that you prefer but do not require. You decide to give a higher rating to any proposal that meets one or both of the following comparative criteria:

- within one-half mile of town hall, and
- within two blocks of public transportation.

Using this evaluation scheme, you can select the lowest-priced proposal which meets only your quality requirements, or choose a higher-priced proposal that offers a preferred location if you determine that the added convenience justifies the price difference.

Whatever process you use, you should inform proposers how you will determine the best price. For example, in a multi-year lease, will you accept proposals for level monthly payments over the term, or will proposers be allowed to propose escalating rents for each year of the lease? If rent escalators may be proposed, you should state how you will calculate the present value of the rental payments and include the formula in your RFP.

You may solicit prices for two different lease terms if you state a rule for how you will decide which term to select. This can be useful if you want to compare, say, a five-year lease to a ten-year lease. Be careful to establish a good decision rule up front and follow it to avoid the appearance of favoritism.

Similarly, if you plan to accept price proposals for a lease that includes utilities and for a lease that does not, you should include in the RFP the method you will use to determine the value of the utilities. To simplify price comparisons in a lease acquisition, it is helpful to provide a standard price form for all proposers to complete.

Proposal submission requirements. Your RFP should state the rules for proposal submission. Specify when (date and time) and where sealed proposals must be delivered, how proposal packages should be marked, and how proposers may correct, modify, or withdraw proposals. State that the selected proposer will be required to submit a disclosure of beneficial interests as required by M.G.L. c. 7, §40J. Also include any standard forms proposers must submit.

Real property price and non-price proposals need not be submitted separately. Unlike Chapter 30B RFP's for supplies and services, you need not require separate submissions of price and non-price proposals. Remember that real property proposals are not confidential after they are opened.

Contract terms and conditions. Any terms and conditions you will require in the agreement should be specified in the RFP and in the contract. Chapter 30B places no limitations on the duration of real property contracts, but other laws may apply in your jurisdiction. Your local counsel can advise you regarding other laws applicable to your jurisdiction's real property transactions. The box below contains information about contract terms and conditions for real property acquisitions.

Real Property Acquisitions: Contract Terms and Conditions

Purchases. If you are purchasing real property, have your attorney draft any terms that you will require to be incorporated into the purchase and sale agreement. Include any mandatory purchase terms in the RFP. Require a certification of tax compliance by the seller (M.G.L. c. 62C, §49A).

Leases. If you are acquiring property by lease, mandatory lease terms should be spelled out in the RFP. A typical lease should:

- a. name the parties to the lease and the responsible parties to receive any notices under the lease;
- b. incorporate by reference the proposal chosen, including a detailed description of the leased property;
- c. specify the duration of the lease, including any renewal, extension, or other options. If the lease will include a renewal option, you must specify how the rent will be determined for the renewal period; (You are not required to retain sole discretion to exercise options in real property agreements as you are for supplies and services contracts. However, you should consider the value of having sole control over the ability to extend lease agreements.)
- d. identify the payment terms, including when payments are due;
- e. spell out all of the responsibilities and obligations of the parties for maintenance, cleaning, utilities, rubbish disposal, snow removal, liability and casualty insurance, etc.;
- f. specify that lease amendments must be in writing and signed by individuals authorized to contract on behalf of your local government;
- g. specify what constitutes cause to terminate the lease, what notice must be provided prior to termination, and what opportunity must be granted to correct any problem;
- h. prohibit any activity that would constitute a violation of the conflict of interest law (M.G.L. c. 268A);
- i. specify that the lease constitutes the entire agreement and that there are no agreements other than those incorporated therein; and
- j. require a certification of tax compliance by the lessor (M.G.L. c. 62C, §49A).

Step 3: Advertise for proposals

You must advertise for proposals in a newspaper with a circulation sufficient to inform the people in the affected locality.⁶³ The advertisement must be published at least once a week for two consecutive weeks preceding the day you selected for opening proposals. The last publication must occur at least eight days before the proposal opening. You may, of course, advertise in more newspapers, in newspapers outside your area, and more frequently.

The advertisement must specify the geographical area in which you are looking for property, the terms and conditions of the proposed lease or purchase, the time and place for submission of proposals, and where and when prospective proposers may obtain a copy of the RFP.

You may contract with an agent to assist you in finding property that meets your needs. The agent's task will be to find suitable property and encourage owners to submit proposals in response to your RFP. Your contract with the agent will be subject to Chapter 30B.

If the proposed acquisition involves more than 2,500 square feet, an advertisement must also be published, at least 30 days before the opening of proposals, in the Central Register published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.⁶⁴

You may inform potential proposers, including brokers and developers, of the availability of the RFP. Be careful to avoid favoritism or the appearance of favoritism.

Step 4: Distribute the RFP

You must make the RFP available on an equal basis to all who request a copy. If you charge a fee to cover your costs for copying the RFP, make sure you charge everyone the same fee.

Keep a record of who received the RFP. If you later issue an addendum to the RFP, send the addendum to all those who have already received the RFP. To avoid misunderstandings or protests, include a requirement in the RFP that proposers acknowledge in writing their receipt of any addenda. Also, if proposers are likely to require additional time to respond to the addendum, extend the proposal due date.

⁶⁴ A Central Register real property advertisement form is included in Appendix B. You may mail or fax the completed form to The Central Register, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Central Register.

Step 5: Open and evaluate proposals

Proposals must be opened in public at the time and place specified in the RFP. You should record the name of each proposer, the location of the property each proposer is offering, and each proposal price. The proposals become public information when they are opened.

You must evaluate the proposals using only the criteria you identified in the RFP. If your RFP states that you will make an award to the responsive and responsible proposer who offers the best price (in essence, a bid process), you may simply identify the lowest-priced proposal, and then evaluate that proposal to determine whether it meets the requirements stated in the RFP. If the proposal does not meet the requirements, reject it and proceed to evaluate the next lowest-priced proposal.

If your RFP states that you will evaluate proposals using comparative evaluation criteria, it will usually be most efficient to first look at the responsiveness and responsibility of the proposals and reject any you find to be not responsive or not responsible. Then evaluate all the remaining proposals on both your comparative criteria and price. Prepare written evaluations. Finally, decide which proposal best meets the needs of your jurisdiction considering the comparative criteria and price.

Step 6: Submit disclosures

You must submit the name of the selected proposer and the amount of the transaction to the Central Register published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.⁶⁵

Also, M.G.L. c. 7, §40J requires disclosure of all beneficial interests in real property acquired or disposed of by a public agency. The selected proposer's disclosure of beneficial interests must be filed with the Commissioner of the state Division of Capital Asset Management (DCAM). No contract to lease or sell property is valid until the seller or lessor files this form with DCAM. (A form for this purpose is in Appendix B.) An updated disclosure form must be filed within 30 days of any change in beneficial interests during a lease term.

Step 7: Execute the contract

If you are purchasing real property, have your attorney ensure that any mandatory terms required by the RFP are incorporated into the purchase and sale agreement.

If you are acquiring property by lease, execute a lease that incorporates all of the terms and conditions required by the RFP.

Step 8: Retain records

You must maintain a file of all written documents required by Chapter 30B for a period of six years from the date of final payment under the contract. These include:

- the RFP and any amendments to the RFP,
- the public advertisement,
- all Central Register notices,
- all proposals received,
- evaluation materials,
- a copy of the disclosure of beneficial interests, and
- the signed purchase and sale agreement or lease.

Real Property Acquisition: Unique Property Acquisitions and Emergencies

Unique Acquisitions

You do not need to prepare an RFP or seek proposals to acquire property if your jurisdiction has determined that it needs a particular piece of property because of its unique qualities or location. You may use this provision to acquire, for example, open land abutting an existing park or a particular parcel of wooded land for conservation purposes. You may not, however, use this provision to acquire property simply Chapter 30B does not authorize “swaps” of real property between a local government and a private party. You can acquire the property without competition if it meets the requirements for a unique acquisition, but there is no basis for disposing of property without an advertised competition. Proposed acquisitions and dispositions of real property must be carried out as separate processes under the statute.

because you are not aware of any other property that will meet your requirements. For example, if you need space for an office in a particular area, you may be aware of only one available location but you must still advertise for proposals to test the market.

The Chapter 30B rules for acquiring unique property require you to make a written determination that advertising will not benefit your jurisdiction because of the unique

You may execute a separate option contract to purchase unique property before publishing a public notice. Such a contract is not an interest in real property. After you have identified property which meets the standard for waiving the advertised RFP process, you may secure an option for the property obliging the owner to sell it to you for an agreed upon price. You can then publish the required 30-day notice in the Central Register.

qualities or location of the property needed. The determination must specify how the property proposed for acquisition satisfies the unique requirements of your jurisdiction. To be consistent with its purpose, this notice should be published prior to entering into a binding agreement to acquire the property.

Although such acquisition of real property is exempt from the RFP process, you must publish an advertisement in the Central

Register at least 30 days prior to executing a binding agreement to acquire the property. The advertisement must include:

- the written determination of uniqueness,
- the names of the parties with a beneficial interest in the property,
- the location and size of the property, and
- the proposed purchase price or rental terms.

A sample form for this purpose is included in Appendix B.

The agreement will not be valid until the disclosure of parties with a beneficial interest in the property, required by M.G.L. c. 7, §40J, is filed with the Commissioner of the Division of Capital Asset Management (DCAM). Appendix B contains a sample form you may use for this purpose.

Emergencies

If an emergency arises and the time required to advertise for real property proposals would endanger the health or safety of people or property, you may shorten the advertising period or waive it completely. Simple administrative inconvenience will not suffice as a justification for invoking the emergency provisions of Chapter 30B; a genuine emergency must exist. If you have reason to know in advance that additional leased space or a property purchase will be needed, and you fail to act until the need has become critical, you will have difficulty justifying the use of emergency procedures.

If you invoke this provision, you must publish a notice in the Central Register at the earliest opportunity stating the reason for declaring the emergency. Appendix B contains a sample form you may use for this purpose.

Real Property Disposition

You must issue a request for proposals (RFP) to dispose of real property with a value of more than $25,000.⁶⁶ The procedures are triggered by the value of the property, not the price your local government will receive for the disposition.

If you are leasing space, you determine the value of the disposition by calculating the lease price over the entire contract term. For example, if you are leasing out a portion of a municipal building for three years with a monthly rent of $1,000, the entire contract costs $36,000 and therefore it must be disposed of using an advertised request for proposals.

Most often, jurisdictions dispose of property when it is no longer needed, although sometimes even property that could be used by the jurisdiction may be leased to promote some public purpose. In assessing whether and how to dispose of surplus property, consider both current and possible future needs. It is best to be systematic: develop an inventory of your jurisdiction's property, survey department heads, and invite public comment. If you find that your jurisdiction might need the property in the future, be sure to structure a lease term so that the property is available for use when needed.

Step 1: Declare property available for disposition and identify reuse restrictions

Before you can sell or lease property, regardless of its value, it must be declared available for disposition by the individual or body with the authority to make such a determination for your jurisdiction. If your jurisdiction wishes to impose any restrictions on reuse of the property, they must be specified as part of the declaration that the property is available for disposition. For example, if you are selling or leasing a surplus school building, you may not care what use the building will be put to by the new owner or lessee, except that the use be legal and conform to local zoning requirements. In that case, you would not specify a reuse restriction. However, if you were leasing only part of a school building, M.G.L. c. 40, §3 would require you to specify that the reuse be compatible with the functioning of the school.

Step 2: Determine the value of the property

You must determine the value of the interest you propose to dispose of before you can dispose of any property. Chapter 30B requires that you determine the property's value by using procedures customarily accepted by the appraising profession as valid. You may hire an appraiser, although you are not required to do so. You may also rely on the municipal assessment of a property's value if it is current, if the municipality is assessed at 100 percent, and if the assessment is determined through valid procedures. For a lease, you may use market rent data or even advertised rental rates, if there are sufficient number of similar properties on the market to determine the lease value.

Step 3: Develop the RFP

Your RFP provides interested parties with the information they need to decide whether they want the property you are selling or leasing and to submit a responsive proposal. The major components of a disposition RFP are:

- description of the property and interest in the property you plan to sell or lease (the "property description") and any reuse restrictions,
- evaluation criteria,
- proposal submission requirements, and
- the contract terms and conditions.

Property description. The property description must be detailed enough for interested parties to understand what you are offering. Be sure to identify reuse restrictions established by your jurisdiction. If the property is being offered for sale, include a reference to a deed or survey. Also identify in the property description the buildings and structures included in the disposition and any restrictions on their use, such as deed restrictions. Drawings, plot plans, or other relevant documents should either be appended to the specifications or incorporated by reference.⁶⁷ The notice must state the terms of the disposition, including whether it is a sale or lease. If it is a lease, state its duration and whether utilities will be included in the lease price or must be paid separately by the lessee.

Evaluation criteria. You should indicate how you will select a proposal from among the competing proposals. The process is similar to developing evaluation criteria for supplies or services (described in Chapters 4 and 5). You should establish:

- criteria to evaluate responsiveness (whether the proposer agrees to meet your terms and the proposal contains all the required documents and forms properly completed) and responsibility (whether the proposer has the capability, integrity, and reliability to perform under the contract);
- comparative criteria if you decide that you want to look at the relative merits of the property proposals rather than just selecting the responsive and responsible proposal that offers the best price; and
- a method to evaluate prices.

You may establish any rating scheme that preserves open and fair competition, keeps proposers on a common footing, and allows manageable and meaningful comparisons. You have the option to use the same rating categories that are used in Chapter 30B RFPs for supplies and services: highly advantageous, advantageous, not advantageous, and unacceptable.

Although Chapter 30B requires proposals, you have the discretion to structure your RFP so that it is, in effect, an invitation for bids. If your objective is simply to dispose of property you do not need, you should sell the property to the proposer offering the highest price. In this instance, your RFP should set out simple criteria and award the contract to the qualified proposer offering the highest price for the property. Your criteria might include:

⁶⁷ You can incorporate a document by reference in your specifications, describe the document, and indicate where the document is located and how it can be obtained.

- a proposal deposit requirement to ensure that only serious proposers participate (a successful proposer who fails to close on the deal would forfeit the deposit), and
- evidence of the proposer's ability to obtain financing.

You should inform proposers how you will determine the best price. For example, in a multi-year lease, specify whether proposers may propose level monthly payments over the term, or if they may propose escalating rents for each year of the lease. If rent escalators may be proposed, you should state how you will calculate the present value of the rental payments and include the formula in the RFP. To simplify lease price comparisons it is helpful to provide a standard price form for all proposers to complete.

If you are interested in promoting a public purpose and price is less important, you will have to carefully think through what you want and how you will evaluate it. The box on the next page presents information on dispositions to promote public purposes.

Real property price and non-price proposals need not be submitted separately. Unlike Chapter 30B RFPs for supplies and services, you need not require separate submissions of price and non-price proposals. Remember that real property proposals are not confidential after they are opened.

Proposal submission requirements.

Your RFP should state the rules for proposal submission. Specify when (date and time) and where sealed proposals must be delivered, how proposal packages should be marked, and how proposers may correct, modify, or withdraw proposals. State that the selected proposer will be required to submit a disclosure of beneficial interests as required by M.G.L. c. 7, §40J. Also include any standard forms proposers must submit.

Contract terms and conditions. Any terms and conditions you will require in the agreement must be specified in the RFP and in the contract. Chapter 30B places no limitations on the duration of real property contracts, but other laws may apply in your jurisdiction.⁶⁸ Your local counsel can advise you regarding other laws applicable to your jurisdiction's real property transactions.

⁶⁸ For example, see M.G.L. c. 40, §3 for limitations on the length of real property leases of public buildings.

Real Property Dispositions to Promote Public Purposes

Your jurisdiction may own real property that you would like to offer for lease or sale in order to promote a public purpose rather than to raise revenue. Based on long-standing interpretations of the Massachusetts State Constitution, if you intend to dispose of real property for less than its fair market value, you must define a valid public purpose to be achieved. Individuals or private organizations may realize incidental benefits from a disposition of public property, but the primary purpose must be to promote the public welfare.

You must structure an open, fair, and competitive disposition process to accomplish your public purpose.

Example 1: Affordable Day Care. You determine that your jurisdiction has a shortage of affordable day care and you decide to lease available space in a school building to a day care provider.

Since the primary objective of this disposition is not to obtain the maximum amount of rent, you set a fixed rent and specify the lease terms for insurance, utilities, maintenance, etc. You require all proposers to meet requirements such as staff training and experience, staff/child ratio, number of children from low-income families to be served, parent participation on governing board, nutrition programs, hours of operation, etc. You then develop evaluation criteria to choose the proposal that best meets your objective of providing high-quality, affordable day care. Under the most straightforward evaluation scheme, you would require proposers to submit a sliding fee scale based on family income and select the responsive and responsible proposal offering the lowest fees to the maximum number of families in need of affordable day care.

Example 2: Affordable Housing. Your jurisdiction owns surplus land. You decide to create affordable housing by dividing the property into lots for sale to low- or moderate-income purchasers.

You specify qualifications for purchasers including maximum income and asset limitations and determine the methods you will use to verify these qualifications. You must also restrict the use of the property and the profit that can be realized by the resale of the property to ensure that the plan meets its objective of creating and preserving affordable housing and does not result in a windfall profit to any individual. After you have established such a plan, you may solicit proposals from prospective homeowners and use any fair and accountable method for proposal selection. If you choose, you may establish a set price for each lot and advertise for proposals from eligible families and individuals. You may then use a public lottery to select winners from among the responsive and responsible proposals.

The box on the next page contains information about contract terms and conditions for real property dispositions.

Step 4: Advertise for proposals

You must advertise for proposals in a newspaper with a circulation sufficient to inform the people of the affected locality.⁶⁹

The advertisement must be published at least once a week for two consecutive weeks preceding the day you selected for opening of proposals. The last publication must occur at least eight days before the proposal opening. You may, of course, advertise in more newspapers, in newspapers outside your area, and more frequently.

The advertisement must specify the geographical area, the terms and conditions of the proposed transaction, and the time and place for submission of proposals. It must also state where and when prospective proposers may obtain a copy of the RFP.

Advertise where you will maximize exposure to potentially interested parties.

For example, if you are offering to lease office space, you will probably reach more potential lessees by advertising in the classified section under “office space” rather than advertising in the legal notices section.

If necessary, you can contract with a broker to help dispose of property.

The broker's job will be to show the property and encourage the submission of sealed proposals on the due date. Your contract with the broker will be subject to Chapter 30B.

If the proposed disposition involves more than 2,500 square feet, an advertisement must also be published, at least 30 days before the opening of proposals, in the Central Register published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.⁷⁰

⁶⁹ M.G.L. c. 30B, §16(d).

⁷⁰ A Central Register real property advertisement form is included in Appendix B. You may mail or fax the completed form to The Central Register, Secretary of the Commonwealth, Regulations Division, Room 2A, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108; Fax: (617) 742-4822; Telephone: (617) 727-9136. There is no charge for advertising in the Central Register.

You may inform potential proposers, including brokers and developers, of the availability of the RFP. Be careful to avoid favoritism or the appearance of favoritism.

Real Property Dispositions: Contract Terms and Conditions

Purchases. If you are selling real property, have your attorney draft any terms that you will require to be incorporated into the purchase and sale agreement. Include any mandatory purchase terms in the RFP. Require a certification of tax compliance by the purchaser (M.G.L. c. 62C, §49A).

Leases. If you are disposing of property by lease, mandatory lease terms must be spelled out in the RFP. A typical lease should:

- a. name the parties to the lease and the responsible parties to receive any notices under the lease;
- b. incorporate by reference the proposal chosen, including a detailed description of the leased property;
- c. specify the duration of the lease, including any renewal, extension, or other options. If the lease will include a renewal option, you must specify how the rent will be determined for the renewal period; (You are not required to retain sole discretion to exercise options in real property agreements as you are for supplies and services contracts.)
- d. identify the payment terms, including when payments are due;
- e. spell out all of the responsibilities and obligations of the parties maintenance, cleaning, utilities, rubbish disposal, snow removal, liability and casualty insurance, etc.;
- f. specify that lease amendments must be in writing and signed by individuals authorized to contract on behalf of your local government;
- g. prohibit assignment or subletting without written approval;
- h. specify what constitutes cause to terminate the lease, what notice must be provided prior to termination, and what opportunity must be granted to correct any problem;
- i. prohibit any activity that would constitute a violation of the conflict of interest law (M.G.L. c. 268A);
- j. specify that the lease constitutes the entire agreement and that there are no agreements other than those incorporated therein; and
- k. require a certification of tax compliance by the lessee (M.G.L. c. 62C, §49A).

Step 5: Distribute the RFP

The RFP must be made available on an equal basis to all who request a copy. You may inform potential proposers, including brokers and developers, of the availability of the RFP. Keep a record of who received the documents. If you later issue an addendum to the RFP, send the addendum to all those who have already received the RFP. To avoid misunderstandings or protests, you may want to require proposers to acknowledge in writing their receipt of each addendum. Also, if proposers are likely to require additional time to respond to the addendum, extend the proposal due date.

Step 6: Open and evaluate proposals

Proposals must be opened in public at the time and place specified in the RFP. Chapter 30B affords no confidentiality to real property proposals. You should record the name of each proposer and the proposal price. The proposals become public information when they are opened.

You must evaluate the proposals using only the criteria you identified in the RFP. If your RFP states that you will make an award to the responsive and responsible proposer who offers the best price (in essence, a bid process), you may simply identify the highest priced proposal, and then evaluate that proposal's responsiveness and responsibility against the quality requirements specified in the RFP. If you determine that a proposal is not responsive or responsible, reject it and proceed to evaluate the next highest proposal.

If your RFP states that you will evaluate proposals using comparative evaluation criteria, it will usually be most efficient to look first at the responsiveness and responsibility of the proposals and reject any you find to be not responsive or not responsible. Then evaluate all the remaining proposals on both your comparative criteria and price. Prepare written evaluations. Finally, decide which proposal best meets the needs of your jurisdiction considering the comparative criteria and price.

If you are going to dispose of the property for less than the value determined in Step 2, you must publish a notice in the Central Register explaining the reasons for your decision and disclosing the difference between the value and the price to be received. To be consistent with its purpose, this notice should be published prior to entering into a binding agreement to dispose of the property.

Step 7: Submit disclosures

You must submit the name of the selected proposer and the amount of the transaction to the Central Register published by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.⁷¹

Also, M.G.L. c. 7, §40J, requires disclosure of all beneficial interests in real property acquired or disposed of by a public agency. The selected proposer's disclosure of beneficial interests must be filed with the Commissioner of the Division of Capital Asset Management (DCAM). No contract to lease or sell property is valid until the buyer or lessee files this form with DCAM. (A form for this purpose is in Appendix B.) An updated disclosure form must be filed within 30 days of any change in beneficial interests during a lease term.

Step 8: Execute the contract

If you are selling real property, have your attorney draft a purchase and sale agreement that incorporates all of the mandatory terms and conditions required by the RFP. If you are disposing of the property by lease, execute a lease which incorporates all the terms and conditions stated in the RFP.

Step 9: Retain records

You must maintain a file of all written documents required by Chapter 30B for a period of six years from the date of final payment under the contract. These documents include the following:

- the declaration that property is available for disposition,
- the RFP and any amendments to the RFP,
- the public advertisement,
- all Central Register notices,

⁷¹ You must publish this information in the Central Register for any disposition with a value of more than $25,000, regardless of the size of the property and whether you previously advertised for proposals in the Central Register.

- all proposals received,
- evaluation materials,
- a copy of the disclosure of beneficial interests, and
- the signed purchase and sale agreement or lease.

Emergencies

If an emergency arises and the time required to advertise for real property proposals would endanger the health or safety of people or property, you may shorten the advertising period or waive it completely. Simple administrative inconvenience will not suffice as a justification for invoking the emergency provisions of Chapter 30B; a genuine emergency must exist. If you have reason to know in advance that a tenant will be vacating a facility, and you fail to advertise in advance, you will not be able to justify using the emergency provisions for an unadvertised, short-term rental to avoid the risks presented by an unoccupied building.

If you invoke this provision, you must publish a notice in the Central Register at the earliest opportunity stating the reason for declaring the emergency. Appendix B contains a sample form you may use for this purpose.

Intergovernmental dispositions

As noted earlier, some intergovernmental real property transactions, such as transactions with state government and transactions within one city or town, are not subject to Chapter 30B. However, other intergovernmental real property transactions are subject to some Chapter 30B requirements. If you intend to dispose of real property to the federal government, another state, a county, or another local jurisdiction, you must first declare the property available for disposition, identify reuse restrictions, and determine the property value. If you are going to dispose of the property for less than the determined value, you must publish a notice in the Central Register explaining the reasons for your decision and disclosing the difference between the value and the price to be received.

CHAPTER 9

Construction-Related Contracts

In general, Chapter 30B does not apply to contracts for construction and construction materials or for design services (principally architectural and engineering services) for specific building and public works projects. However, Chapter 30B does apply to the services of architects and engineers that are not related to construction projects. In addition, you may opt to use Chapter 30B bid procedures when awarding small contracts (between $10,000 and $25,000) for building or public works construction. You may also use Chapter 30B for construction materials contracts.

This chapter only briefly identifies the requirements applicable to various design and construction contracts. For more detailed information, you may obtain a copy of the Inspector General's manual, Designing and Constructing Municipal Facilities, from the Office of the Inspector General's website at www.state.ma.us/ig, or from the State Book Store.

Design Service Contracts

Design services in connection with a specific public construction project are exempt from Chapter 30B.⁷² Design services include preparation of master plans, feasibility and other studies, surveys, soils tests, cost estimates, or programs; preparation of drawings, plans, and specifications, including schematics and preliminary plans; supervision or administration of a construction contract; and construction management and scheduling.

Public building projects. In general, when you contract for design services for any building construction, reconstruction, alteration, remodeling, or repair estimated to cost more than $100,000, the design services contract is subject to the state's Designer Selection Law.⁷³ The state's Designer Selection Board (DSB) has issued guidelines for local jurisdictions to follow in awarding building design contracts. Appendix C contains information on how to contact the DSB.

⁷² M.G.L. c. 30B, §§1(b)(15), 2.

⁷³ M.G.L., c. 7, §38A½-O

Public works projects. Design service contracts for a specific public works project (such as a road, bridge, sewer, or landfill construction project), are not subject to either the designer selection law or Chapter 30B. Nevertheless, we recommend that you conduct an advertised, competitive process to award public works design contracts with a construction cost estimate over $100,000. Whether you follow the designer selection law procedures or the Chapter 30B procedures, fostering competition among qualified engineering firms is the best way to ensure that you obtain the quality services you need at a favorable price.

Retainer-like contracts that include both design and non-design services are subject to Chapter 30B. Local governments sometimes contract with a firm to provide expertise on a variety of issues that arise over a period to time. When these contracts include services – such as rate studies or traffic studies – that are not performed in connection with a construction project, the contract must be awarded under Chapter 30B procedures.

Other architectural and engineering contracts. If you contract for architectural, engineering, or other professional consulting services that do not relate to a specific construction project, the contract is subject to the requirements of Chapter 30B. For example, you must follow Chapter 30B in selecting an engineering firm to conduct traffic counts at every major intersection of your community if this traffic study is not being conducted in connection with a road construction or repair project. A contract with an engineering firm to operate and maintain a public facility such as a wastewater treatment plant is also subject to Chapter 30B.

Construction Contracts

Contracts for construction, maintenance, remodeling, and repair on public works or buildings and the procurement of construction materials estimated to cost more than $10,000 are subject to the state's construction bid laws.

Contracts between $10,000 and $25,000. These contracts for construction work on public buildings or public works may be awarded by following either M.G.L. c. 30, §39M, or the bid procedures of Chapter 30B⁷⁴; you may not issue a Chapter 30B RFP for construction work or construction materials. Examples of building-related projects that you may bid under Chapter 30B include heating, plumbing, roofing repairs, painting, weatherization, and installation of linoleum or wall-to-wall carpeting. Public works projects include maintenance and repair work on streets, roads, bridges, landfills, and water and sewer systems. Materials include plumbing and electrical supplies, paint, doors, and bituminous concrete.

The Chapter 30B bid procedures differ slightly from the Chapter 30, §39M, procedures: For example, Chapter 30, §39M, requires you to advertise the contract in the Central Register, whereas Chapter 30B does not. In addition, Chapter 30, §39M, requires you to obtain a bid deposit from the bidder totaling five percent of the bid amount; Chapter 30B does not.

Regardless of which law you use, you must comply with certain statutory requirements applicable to all contracts for construction-related work. Your contracts for such work must include the following provisions:

Wages and employment conditions. Your construction contract must contain various provisions relating to wages and employment conditions, including the payment of prevailing wages as set by the Department of Labor and Workforce Development (DLWD), hiring preferences for veterans and residents of Massachusetts, and worker's compensation coverage. (M.G.L. c. 149, §§26-37). You must obtain the prevailing wage rates applicable to the project from the DLWD in advance of the bidding process, and you should include the wage rates in the IFB. Appendix C includes information about contacting DLWD.

Payment bonds. M.G.L. c. 149, §29, requires you to obtain at least a 50 percent payment bond from the contractor for every construction project costing over $2,000.

The key requirements for each method of procuring construction work totaling between $10,000 and $25,000 are presented on the next page.

⁷⁴ M.G.L. c. 30, §39M(d)(4).

Construction Contracts Between $10,000 to $25,000 Comparison of Procurement Methods

Contracts for more than $25,000. Public building construction contracts estimated to cost more than $25,000 are governed by M.G.L. c. 149, §§44A through M, which sets out detailed procedures, including contractor certification and solicitation of filed sub-bids. Contracts for public works construction must be bid under M.G.L. c. 30, §39M. Contracts solely for the purchase of construction materials (no labor) may be bid under either Chapter 30B or M.G.L. c. 30, §39M.

CHAPTER 10

Resolving and Avoiding Bid Protests

Under Massachusetts law, any bidder or proposer competing for a public contract can challenge the award of that contract in court on the grounds that the awarding authority did not comply with public bid laws.⁷⁵ It is our experience that most bid protests stem from a vendor's good-faith belief that the procurement process was illegal, unfair, or both. Regardless of whether a protest has merit, it is in your interest to resolve it quickly and fairly, to avoid litigation, and to award a contract with confidence that it will be legally valid. This chapter is dedicated to helping you resolve – or, better yet, avoid – bid protests.⁷⁶

Resolving Bid Protests

Vendors may bring bid protests to your jurisdiction or to our Office. In general, you should take any protest seriously, consider its merits, and work to resolve it quickly. The first section below provides advice on how to deal with protests lodged with your jurisdiction. The second section explains how we handle protests lodged with our Office.

Protests lodged with your jurisdiction

If you receive a protest before bids or proposals are due or if vendors have many questions, you should consider issuing an addendum. At this stage, you can correct the IFB or RFP, or clarify vague or ambiguous terms by sending a written addendum to every vendor. If you are not sure whether an addendum is called for, you may seek advice from your local CPO, local counsel, or our Office. By taking this action before bids or proposals are due, you may preserve your process and avoid a disputed award.

⁷⁵ See Quincy Ornamental Iron Works, Inc. v. Findlen, 353 Mass. 85 (1967).

⁷⁶ The term “bid protest” is used in this chapter to refer to a complaint raised by a vendor regarding the process used to award a contract under Chapter 30B, including an informal quotation process for a small contract, a sealed bid or proposal process for supplies or services, or a real property proposal process.

If you receive a protest after bids or proposals are opened and you are not sure whether it is valid, we recommend that you consult your CPO, your local counsel, or our Office for an opinion before you sign a contract. By seeking assistance before executing a contract you keep your options open and may avoid costly litigation. At this stage, you still have the discretion to reject all bids or proposals if it is in the public interest to do so, or to reject a bidder or proposer that did not meet your requirements, and you may be able to award the contract to the next best bidder or proposer.

If a vendor protests after you have executed a final contract, you will need to decide as quickly as possible whether the protest has merit, and if so, whether to take steps to halt the contract. If there were major deficiencies in the procurement process, the contract will be invalid and the contractor cannot legally be paid.⁷⁷ A decision either to halt the contract or to direct the contractor to proceed under the contract may have financial consequences, so it is important to establish solid legal ground for your decision. We recommend that you involve your local counsel if you have not already done so, and you may contact our Office for an opinion.

Protests lodged with the Inspector General's Office

We have developed an informal dispute resolution process to resolve protests as efficiently as possible without resort to litigation. A protest can be initiated by a telephone call or a letter to this Office from a vendor or concerned citizen.

Upon receiving a protest, we usually ask any protester who has not yet brought the issue to the attention of the jurisdiction to do so. If the issue cannot be resolved with the jurisdiction, our Office will review the protest for merit.

If a protest is reasonable on its face, we will contact the jurisdiction to request documents or to seek clarification on how a decision was made. We can discuss the protest with the procurement officials, but the identity of any protester complaining to our Office is protected under our confidentiality rules.

⁷⁷ See M.G.L. c. 30B, §17(b).

When we have all of the necessary information we will determine whether, in our opinion, the process complies with Chapter 30B. We will inform the jurisdiction of our opinion before we discuss it with the protestor. To save time, we generally notify everyone concerned by telephone.

Whenever possible, we work with the jurisdiction to correct problems while preserving the process. If, for example, we determine before bids or proposals are opened that the specifications are inadequate or ambiguous, we will recommend that the jurisdiction issue an addendum extending the opening date and clarifying the specifications.

If we learn after bids or proposals have been opened that the process did not comply with Chapter 30B, we will discuss the legal basis for our opinion with the jurisdiction and lay out options for remedying the problem. If, on the other hand, we conclude that the protest is without merit, we will advise all concerned parties of our opinion that the contract can be awarded to the selected vendor.

We have found that in most cases an opinion from our Office will resolve a bid dispute. Most jurisdictions find that our Office serves as a useful arbiter in deciding whether to award a contract or reject bids and readvertise in the face of a protest. Most protestors who do not convince our Office will accept our opinion and drop the complaint.

The opinions given by our Office through this informal process, however, are not binding on either the jurisdiction or the protestor. A protestor may be entitled to pursue his or her complaint in court even if our Office finds the protest to be without merit. A court may defer to our Office's expertise, but our opinion has no legal effect.

Ten Tips for Avoiding Bid Protests

In our years of hearing bid protests, we have learned that many protests can be avoided by paying attention to some straightforward rules. We offer the following 10 tips, which are all based on rules and recommended practices covered in this manual.

1. Make sure to follow the advertising rules. If you are all set to award a Chapter 30B contract that will cost more than $100,000, and you then discover that you forgot to advertise in the Goods and Services Bulletin, you will have to reject all bids and start over. Be sure you know the advertising requirements before you undertake any procurement because a failure to advertise cannot be waived.

2. Reject any sealed bid or proposal delivered after the deadline. If you need to make a change in the specifications or if you learn that vendors need additional time to prepare responses, you may issue an addendum before the deadline extending the due date. However, you may not accept a bid or proposal that is delivered late by a bidder or proposer, even if it is only a few minutes late.

3. Avoid proprietary specifications. Proprietary specifications require a particular brand-name product or have the effect of limiting competition to a supply or service which can be provided by only one particular manufacturer or supplier. Under Chapter 30B, you may not use proprietary specifications unless there is no other way to describe the supply or service you need.

There are a few kinds of contracts for which you can justify the use of proprietary specifications, such as software licenses. For most supplies and services, however, it is possible to write specifications which allow for competition among vendors. If you use a brand name as a standard for performance or quality, be sure to explain that other brand names meeting this standard are acceptable.

We recommend that you review your specifications and eliminate or modify clauses that specify brand names. You should also be wary of specifications which describe equipment to an unusually high level of detail. Fire truck and ambulance specifications, for example, are sometimes so specific that they require bolts and screws to be a particular diameter. Often such details were inserted, not by the jurisdiction, but by a vendor who drafted “model” specifications to exclude competing companies.

If you believe that you are justified in using proprietary specifications, be sure to document your reasons in writing and be prepared to defend your decision if vendors protest.

4. Be sure to provide vendors with an adequate description of the supplies or services you need. Your specifications must provide vendors with enough information to give you a competitive bid or proposal. Consider the example of a town that solicited hourly rates for insurance consulting services, but did not provide a description of the tasks to be performed or an estimated number of hours for each task. One consultant submitted a price range of $50 to $150 per hour, while another bid a flat rate of $125 per hour. The town had no basis for determining which consultant offered the lowest price. In order to solicit genuine competition for this contract, the town must include a description of the tasks to be performed and an estimated number of hours required for each task.

5. Use clear, objective evaluation criteria. Regardless of whether you are seeking bids or proposals, you must let vendors know what standards you will use to judge their qualifications and their responses. For example, consider using a contractor's experience as a quality requirement. A school district seeking bids for school bus transportation wants to be sure that the contractor has adequate experience, and specifies as a quality requirement five years of experience. The low bidder has five years of experience, but it consists of only one small contract, which does not approximate the size of the district's transportation contract. The district is reluctant to contract with this vendor, but may be faced with a bid protest for rejecting a bidder that met the required qualifications. To avoid this dilemma, the district should use a strict, clear standard: for example, that the firm and all of its key personnel must have a minimum of five years experience in satisfactorily performing school transportation for at least one municipality or school district with a contract similar in size and scope to the district's contract.

The use of clear standards – including clear comparative criteria in an RFP process – helps ensure that you get the quality of supplies and services you expect and that you avoid protests from vendors.

6. Tell vendors up front how you will calculate the low bid price. This rule sounds simple, and usually it is. However, occasionally we get protests about solicitations that produce more than one "low bidder."

For example, if you solicit prices for a two-year, three-year, and four-year contract, you could get a different low bidder for each of these options. If your fuel oil solicitation allows bidders to submit either a fixed price or a price that fluctuates according to an index, it may well be impossible to determine which bid is the lowest. You cannot solicit prices on an array of different options and then decide after you have opened the bids which one you really want.

7. If you are purchasing multiple items in one solicitation, tell vendors how many contracts you will award. You may be able to save time and money by advertising for prices on an array of related items such as office supplies, cleaning supplies, or automotive parts in one bid. If you do, you must tell bidders in the solicitation whether you will award a separate contract to the low bidder for each supply or whether you will award one contract to the bidder with the lowest overall price.

8. Avoid the appearance of bid-splitting. Bid-splitting is intentionally dividing a purchase into two or more smaller purchases for the purpose of evading the requirements of a bidding law. This practice is illegal under Chapter 30B.⁷⁸

In some circumstances, it makes good business sense to make small, frequent purchases and you should not hesitate to do so. Fresh produce, for example, is typically purchased this way because availability and price fluctuate widely. However, a jurisdiction that makes five separate purchases of $6,000 each from one vendor in a short period of time by informally soliciting telephone quotations is likely to create the impression that it is bid-splitting to avoid the $25,000 threshold.

If your jurisdiction makes small, frequent purchases from one vendor, be sure that you can justify the practice with a good business reason.

9. Play by your own rules. Sometimes vendors claim that the jurisdiction unfairly changed the rules of the competition after the bids or proposals were opened. Consider the example of a computer system RFP that specifies that the system must process a certain number of transactions per minute. None of the proposals received meet this criterion, so the jurisdiction decides after the fact to ignore the requirement because it seems impossible to meet.

Chapter 30B does not allow a requirement to be waived after the fact when the effect would be to undermine fair competition. In this example, there may have been five proposers who submitted proposals in spite of the impossible standard, but there could well have been a dozen others who did not respond because they knew that their systems would not meet the standard.

10. Treat all vendors fairly. This rule almost seems too obvious to mention, but occasionally we receive protests from vendors who appear to have been subjected to different treatment than their competitors. For example, a jurisdiction requires bidders to submit at least three references to verify experience. The lowest bidder submits five references. The jurisdiction checks all five, and gets satisfactory reports from four; the fifth reference indicates that the vendor did not perform satisfactorily. The jurisdiction wants to reject the low bidder and award the contract to the second lowest bidder, after checking three references. The low bidder protests this unequal treatment. To avoid this situation, the jurisdiction could require vendors to submit references for all similar contracts within a set number of years, and state in the invitation for bids that the jurisdiction will randomly select three references to evaluate the low bidder's ability to perform. This rule makes it clear that the jurisdiction will check the same number of references for each competitor and avoid the appearance of favoritism.

Appendix A

Contracts Exempt from Chapter 30B

The following supply and service contracts are exempt from the requirements of Chapter 30B.

1. Public construction contracts subject to the provisions of M.G.L. c. 30, §39M or M.G.L. c. 149, sections 44A through 44J, inclusive. [M.G.L., c. 30B, §1(b)(1).] See Chapter 9 for information on design and construction projects.
2. Public building design contracts subject to the provisions of M.G.L. c. 7, §§38A½ - 38O, inclusive. [M.G.L., c. 30B, §1(b)(2).] See Chapter 9 for information on design and construction projects.
3. Intergovernmental service agreement under the provisions of M.G.L. c. 40, §4A. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(3).]
4. Agreements with the Commonwealth. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(4).]
5. Contracts for the purchase of materials, under specifications of the Massachusetts Highway Department, and at prices established by the Department, pursuant to advertising and bidding for such purpose, in connection with work to be performed under the provisions of M.G.L. c. 81 or M.G.L. c. 90. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(5).]
6. Contracts for the advertising of required notices. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(6).]
7. An agreement between agencies, boards, commissions, authorities, departments or public instrumentalities of one city or town. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(7).]
8. An agreement for the provision of special education pursuant to c. 71B and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(8).]

This exemption applies to direct services delivered to children with special needs, such as transportation, counseling or education under an individual education program, as well as to any supplies used by children with special needs as part of an educational program. Other supplies and services, however, are not exempt simply because they are procured by the special education department. For example, office supplies or computers to be used for office administration would not fall under this exemption.

9. A contract to purchase supplies or services from, or to dispose of supplies to, any agency or instrumentality of the federal government, the commonwealth or any of its political subdivisions or any other state or political subdivision thereof. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(9).]

10. The issuance of bonds, notes or securities in accordance with procedures established by law. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(10).]
11. Contracts and investments made in connection with deferred compensation programs for employees in accordance with sections 57 or 57A of M.G.L. c. 35 or sections 67 or 67A of M.G.L. c. 44. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(11).]
12. A contract for the procurement of insurance or surety bonds, including an agreement subject to the provisions of sections 1 to 16, inclusive, of M.G.L. c. 40M or sections 25E to 25U, inclusive, of M.G.L. c. 152. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(12).]

The procurement of an insurance contract is exempt from Chapter 30B. Contracts for insurance-related services, however, are not exempt. You must follow Chapter 30B to procure insurance consulting, claims administration, or third-party billing services.

13. Contracts for the services of expert witnesses for use in an adjudicatory proceeding or litigation or in anticipation thereof. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(13).]
14. Contracts or agreements entered into by a municipal gas or electric department governed by a municipal light board, as defined by section 55 of M.G.L. c. 164 or by a municipal light commission, as defined by section 56A of c. 164; provided, however, that any such board or commission may accept the provisions of this chapter by a majority vote of its members. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(14).]
15. Contracts with labor relations representatives, lawyers, designers, or certified public accountants. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(15).]

This exemption applies only to services that could reasonably be restricted exclusively to labor relations representatives, lawyers, designers, or certified public accountants. Other service contracts are not exempt from Chapter 30B simply because you select a labor relations representative, lawyer, designer or certified public accountant to perform the service. For example, a contract to computerize your accounting system is subject to Chapter 30B even if you contract with a CPA firm. Similarly, a contract to operate a water treatment facility is subject to Chapter 30B even if you choose an engineering firm, because the contract is not for a design service.

Remember that contracts with architects and other designers that involve design work in connection with a building are subject to the designer selection law, M.G.L. c. 7, sections 38A½ - 38O, inclusive. See Chapter 9 for more information on building design contracts.

16. Contracts with physicians, dentists, and other health care individuals or persons including nurses, nurses' assistants, medical and laboratory technicians, health care providers including diagnosticians, social workers, psychiatric workers, and veterinarians. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(16).]

This exemption applies only to services that could reasonably be restricted exclusively to physicians, dentists, and other health care individuals or entities. Other health care related service contracts are not exempt from Chapter 30B simply because you select a physician, dentist or other health care individual to perform the service.

17. A contract for snow plowing services. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(17).]
18. A contract or lease by a governmental body of its boat slips, berths, or moorings. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(18).]
19. A contract for retirement board services. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(19).]
20. A contract which is funded by proceeds derived from a gift to a governmental body or a trust established for the benefit of a governmental body. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(20).]
21. A contract for the towing and storage for motor vehicles. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(21).]
22. A contract to provide job-related training, educational or career development services to the employees of a governmental body. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(22).]
23. A contract pursuant to which a governmental body obtains services from a bank, as defined in section one of M.G.L. c. 167, subject to the maintenance of a compensating balance. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(23).]

Compensating balance contracts are subject to the provisions of section 53F of M.G.L. c. 44, and rules established by the state Department of Revenue.

24. A contract for ambulance service by a governmental body. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(24).]

The procurement of ambulances is subject to Chapter 30B.

25. A contract to sell, lease or acquire residential, institutional, industrial or commercial real property by a public or quasi-public economic development agency or urban renewal agency engaged in the development and disposition of said real property in accordance with a plan approved by the appropriate authorizing authority. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(25).]
26. A contract for the collection of delinquent taxes or for the services of a deputy tax collector. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(26).]

27. Contracts or agreements entered into by a municipal hospital or a municipal department of health. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(27).]
28. Contracts entered into by a governmental body on behalf of a hospital owned by such governmental body where such contract is funded by expenditures from an operations account, so-called, or an special account, established pursuant to a special act that is maintained for the benefit of and designated with the name of such hospital. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(28).]
29. Contracts, agreements, or leases entered into by a municipal airport commission established under the provisions of section 51E of M.G.L. c.90, provided, however, that such contracts, agreements or leases apply to aviation uses or the sale of aviation fuel. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(29).]
30. A contract for the collection, transportation, receipt, processing, or disposal of solid waste, recyclable or compostable materials. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(30).]
31. An agreement for the purchase of photography services entered into by a public school. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(31).]
32. Energy aggregation contracts entered into by a political subdivision of the commonwealth for energy or energy related services arranged or negotiated by such subdivision on behalf of its residents. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(32).]
33. Energy contracts entered into by a city or town or group of cities or towns or political subdivisions of the commonwealth, for energy or energy related services; provided, however, that within 15 days of the signing of a contract for energy or energy related services by a city, town, political subdivision, or group of cities, towns or political subdivisions said city, town, political subdivision, or group of cities, towns or political subdivisions shall submit to the department of telecommunications and energy, the division of energy resources, and the office of the inspector general a copy of the contract and a report of the process used to execute the contract. [M.G.L. c. 30B, §1(b)(33).]

Instructions
Chief Procurement Officer's
Delegation of Procurement Powers and Duties Form

Chapter 30B, Section 19, of the General Laws authorizes the Chief Procurement Officer (CPO) of a governmental body to delegate procurement powers and duties to other employees of the governmental body. The CPO has great discretion in making a delegation – it can be very specific and limited, or very broad.

Keep in mind that you may only delegate powers you legally have under Chapter 30B and other applicable statutes, rules, regulations, charters, ordinances, or bylaws. For example, where statutes or other rules require that a contract be approved by the mayor, city council, board of selectmen, or school committee, such final approval is not the CPO's to delegate.

You must complete and sign one delegation form for each delegation of powers and duties, and for each subsequent amendment or revocation of an original delegation. Step-by-step instructions are listed below.

1. Check the appropriate box.
2. List the official title and department of the employee position receiving this delegation. Also, please list the full name of the employee currently in this position.
3. Check as many boxes as apply. If you wish to delegate powers and duties in addition to, or other than, those listed on the form, check "Other" and specify the powers and duties you are delegating in an attachment.
4. Check as many boxes as apply. If necessary, list additional departments or contracts in an attachment. If you wish to restrict the delegation in some way other than those listed on the form, check "Other" and specify the requirements in an attachment.
5. Check as many boxes as apply. If you wish to impose requirements not listed on the form, check "Other" and specify the requirements in an attachment.
6. Enter the expiration date, if any. If there is no scheduled expiration date, enter "Not Applicable."
7. Enter the name of your governmental body. Sign and date the delegation form. List your name, official title, department, office address, and office telephone number.
8. Send the original of this form to the Office of the Inspector General at the address provided on the bottom of the form.

No delegation or subsequent amendment or revocation of an original delegation shall take effect until the original of this form has been received by the Office of the Inspector General. A copy will be retained in the Office's file.

Advertisements in the Goods and Services Bulletin

Phone: (617) 727-9136

DEADLINE: 4:00 P.M. WEDNESDAY

Chapter 30B requires that an advertisement be published in the Goods and Services Bulletin at least two weeks prior to the deadline for receipt of bids or proposals for any contract in the amount of $100,000 or more. The advertisement must also be published in a newspaper of general circulation.

Chapter 30B also requires publication of a notice in the Goods and Services Bulletin at the earliest possible date for every emergency procurement which requires a waiver of Chapter 30B requirements.

The Goods and Services Bulletin is published every Monday including holidays. The deadline for receipt of submissions to the bulletin is Wednesday at 4:00 p.m. for publication on the following Monday. There is no charge for publishing advertisements or notices.

Advertisements and emergency notices must be typed on the forms on the following pages and submitted by:

FAX: (617) 742-4822 or MAIL: Goods and Services Bulletin
Regulations Division
Room 2A, One Ashburton Place
Boston, MA 02108

It is also now possible to transmit Bulletin information via e-mail. The E-MAIL address is: regs@sec.state.ma.us.

DIRECTIONS

The Goods and Services Bulletin Form has been designed to replace the forms package which contained the forms GS-1, GS-2, GS-3, GS-7, Emergency Procurement, Surplus Property, and Sole Source. This form reflects the database that is maintained by the Office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth for the publication of the Goods and Services Bulletin. In the near future, it will be possible for you to use this same form to send your notices electronically. We will continue to accept delivery of notices in the traditional manner.

1. AWARDING AUTHORITY is one character, either the letter "c" for cities and towns or the letter "a" for state agencies, regional authorities, counties, etc., or the letter "p" for the Division of Procurement and General Services only.
2. AGENCY is the name of the city, town, state agency etc. These names must be input this way:
Boston, City of; Transitional Assistance, Dept. of; Winchester, Town of.
There are five lines for text and should include the name of the agency as well as the address.
3. BID NUMBER may not appear in every notice.
4. CONTACT INFORMATION is the specific person who has detailed information and the complete Request for Proposals (RFP) or specifications for the notice. Include the address here only if it is different from the AGENCY address above.
5. DESCRIPTION is in two parts. (1) the specific nature of the notice (Goods, Services, Social Services, Emergency Procurement, Sole Source, Surplus property, or Computer) and (2) brief description of the good, service etc. This brief description must fit in the space provided on the form and should not include a description of the agency or of the program.
6. CONTRACT INFORMATION contains the Estimated Rate, Bid Release and Deadline Dates, Duration of Contract. The deadline date must be filled in for all notices except Emergency and Sole Source.
7. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION is any factor not included in the DESCRIPTION but which is critical to a prospective vendor such as a pre-bid conference, a site inspection or any unique qualification. Information must be limited to the space on the form.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

William Francis Galvin, Secretary of the Commonwealth
State Publications and Regulations

July 27, 1998

I am proud to announce that the Central Register has a new look!

As you know, Chapter 9, section 20A of the Mass. General Laws requires the Secretary of the Commonwealth to publish the Central Register listing all notices of bid opportunities of certain public construction related contracts, real estate transactions and various other items such as contract awards. We have created five new electronic forms that can be used for the various types of advertisements that appear in the Central Register. The five forms are the CR-1 for Designer Services, the CR-2 for General Contracts, the CR-3 for the Acquisition or Disposition of Real Property, the CR-4 for Contract Awards, and the CR-5 for the List of Persons Receiving Bidding Documents. These new forms will replace the forms package that you have received in the past. The information on these forms will be keyed into and published from a large database that is maintained by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Effective August 26, 1998, we will no longer accept any ads from agencies using the old forms. Only ads submitted on the new electronic forms will be published in the Central Register.

The news gets better. You now have the ability to send your ads directly to the Central Register database electronically. For those of you that do not have this e-mail capability, we will continue to accept your ads over the fax, via the mail, and in person.

Please note that it is necessary to fit the information you send to the Central Register in the allotted space on the new forms. Exceptions cannot be made as the space provided reflects the size of the field in the database. Remember that the Central Register is intended to be an index of contract opportunities containing only enough information to lead a prospective vendor to the contracting authority for the full Request for Response(RFR). Any lengthy details should appear in the actual RFR and not the ad itself.

If you have any questions regarding our new format, please contact the State Publications and Regulations Division at (617) 727-2831.

Very truly yours,

William Francis Galvin
Secretary of the Commonwealth

Appendix D

Recommended Code of Conduct for Public Employees

The Office of the Inspector General has developed the attached Code of Conduct as a supplement to M.G.L. c. 268A, the conflict of interest law. The Code sets standards of conduct for public employees engaged in official business relationships. We recommend that local jurisdictions adopt the Code to preserve the integrity of business relationships and to maintain the highest level of public confidence in the impartial operation of government.

CODE OF CONDUCT FOR PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

INTRODUCTION

The Massachusetts conflict of interest law, Chapter 268A of the Massachusetts General Laws, prohibits public employees from soliciting or accepting gratuities of substantial value for or because of their official duties. The law covers all State, county, and municipal employees, as well as employees of independent State authorities, districts, and commissions. The State Ethics Commission, which enforces the conflict of interest law, is authorized to impose civil fines of up to $2,000 for each violation of the law and to recover damages. The law also carries criminal penalties, including fines and terms of imprisonment.

The conflict of interest law encourages public agencies to establish and enforce standards of conduct. This Code of Conduct is designed to supplement the conflict of interest law by setting standards of conduct for all employees with respect to relationships with individuals and entities with whom the public sector conducts official business. The purpose of this Code is to preserve the integrity of these relationships and to maintain the highest level of public confidence in the impartial operation of government.

This Code prohibits certain activities that could result in a conflict of interest or create the appearance of a conflict of interest. Exceptions to the Code's prohibitions are limited to specific circumstances in which an overriding public interest is served by the exception or in which the relationship in question is primarily personal.

The Massachusetts Office of the Inspector General has developed this Code for use by public agencies throughout the Commonwealth. Five major areas are addressed by this Code: gifts and gratuities, reimbursement of travel expenses, honoraria, testimonial and retirement functions, and groundbreaking and dedication ceremonies. This Code is not all-inclusive. It does not regulate every conceivable situation in which a public employee may be offered gifts or other items of monetary value. It does not address other activities prohibited by the conflict of interest law, such as bribery, participation in official matters affecting one's financial interests or those of one's family or business, and misuse of one's official position. For information or advice on matters not covered by this Code, guidance may be sought from local counsel and from the State Ethics Commission. As used in this Code, "we" and "our" refer to the agency adopting this Code; "you" refers to the agency's employees or members.

CODE OF CONDUCT

I. GIFTS AND GRATUITIES

A. General Restrictions

You may not solicit or accept, directly or indirectly, any gift, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan, or other item of monetary value from a person, public agency, or private entity you know or have reason to know:

1. Has had, has, or is seeking to obtain contractual or other business or financial relations with us;
2. Conducts or is seeking to conduct business or other activities that are regulated or monitored by us; or
3. Has interests that may be or may give the reasonable impression of being substantially affected by the performance or nonperformance of your official duties.

Example: You may not accept a restaurant lunch from a consultant employed by a firm under contract to us.

Example: You may not accept a Christmas gift from a vendor seeking business with us.

Example: You may not accept a ticket to a sporting event from an individual whose business we regulate.

B. Exceptions

1. You may accept gifts in cases involving a family or personal relationship when the circumstances make clear that the relationship is the motivation for the gift.
2. You may accept nonalcoholic beverages, such as coffee or tea, from public or private entities.
3. You may attend and accept food and beverages at seasonal or celebratory functions, such as Christmas, birthday, or retirement parties, hosted by public entities.
4. You may accept food and beverages in connection with attendance at working meetings held in the office of a public entity.

5. You may accept food and beverages in connection with attendance at widely attended meetings or gatherings held by a private trade or professional association in an office or other business setting when you are attending the meeting or gathering in your official capacity for informational, educational, or other similar purposes.

Example: You may accept a modest meal served in a restaurant function room in conjunction with an informational, widely attended meeting hosted by a professional association.

Example: You may not accept food and beverages at a hospitality suite hosted by one or more private firms.

6. You may accept loans from banks or other financial institutions to finance proper and usual customer activities, such as home mortgage loans and automobile loans. If the bank or financial institution is an entity with which you have or might reasonably expect to have dealings in your official capacity, you must be able to demonstrate that the loan has been granted on current customary terms; you must also provide written disclosure of the loan to your supervisor. The previous sentence does not apply if your duties or anticipated duties with respect to the bank are limited to obtaining third-party records.

7. You may accept unsolicited advertising or promotional materials of nominal value.

Example: You may accept an unsolicited, inexpensive promotional pen or calendar.

Example: You may not accept a leather portfolio.

II. REIMBURSEMENT OF TRAVEL EXPENSES

A. General Restrictions

You may not accept reimbursement for travel expenses from a person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above.

B. Exceptions

1. If you deliver a speech or participate in a conference, we may elect to accept reimbursement from the sponsor of the speech or conference for your actual and necessary travel expenses. In this case, we – not the sponsor – will pay or reimburse you in accordance with our travel policy, and bill the sponsor for the appropriate amount.
2. If we determine that employee travel is a necessary component of a vendor evaluation process, we may elect to require competing vendors to reimburse us for actual and necessary travel expenses incurred in connection with the evaluation. In this case, we – not the vendors – will pay or reimburse you in accordance with our travel policy. The publicly advertised request for proposals or bids must set forth our procedures for calculating and billing all competing vendors for the appropriate amounts.

III. HONORARIA

A. General Restrictions

You may not accept honoraria or other monetary compensation from an outside source in return for a public appearance, speech, lecture, publication, or discussion unless all of the following conditions are met:

1. Preparation or delivery of the public appearance, speech, lecture, publication, or discussion is not part of your official duties;
2. Neither the sponsor nor the source, if different, of the honorarium is a person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above;
3. You do not use office supplies or facilities not available to the general public in the preparation or delivery of the public appearance, speech, lecture, publication, or discussion; and
4. You do not take office time for the preparation or delivery of the public appearance, speech, lecture, publication, or discussion.

Example: You may accept an honorarium for a magazine article prepared outside working hours.

Example: You may not accept an honorarium for delivering a speech in your official capacity.

B. Exceptions

1. You may accept awards, certificates, or other items of nominal value given for a speech, participation in a conference, or a public contribution or achievement.

Example: You may accept a framed certificate of appreciation.

Example: You may not accept an engraved pewter bowl.

IV. TESTIMONIAL AND RETIREMENT FUNCTIONS

A. General Restrictions⁷⁹

1. You may not solicit contributions, sell tickets, or otherwise seek or accept payment for a testimonial or retirement function, or any function having a similar purpose, held for yourself or any other employee, if the contributor is a person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above, and the admission price or payment exceeds the actual per-person cost of food and beverages served at the function.

Example: You may not offer or sell tickets to a testimonial dinner to contractors doing business with us if the ticket price includes a contribution toward a gift.

2. You may not accept food, beverages, or gifts at any testimonial or retirement function, or any function having a similar purpose, if such food, beverages, or gifts are paid for or subsidized by a person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above.

Example: You may not accept a free admission to a retirement luncheon if the cost of your admission is paid, directly or indirectly, by one or more contractors doing business with us.

Example: You may not accept a retirement gift if the gift was paid for with the proceeds of tickets purchased by contractors doing business with us.

B. Exceptions

None.

⁷⁹ Chapter 268, §9A, of the Massachusetts General Laws currently prohibits anyone from selling, offering for sale, or accepting payment for tickets to, or soliciting or accepting contributions for, testimonial dinners or functions held on behalf of anyone employed by a law enforcement, regulatory, or investigatory agency of the Commonwealth or any political subdivision of the Commonwealth. The law carries a maximum fine of $500.

V. GROUNDBREAKING AND DEDICATION CEREMONIES

A. General Restrictions

1. You may not request or require any person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above, to sponsor or contribute to any groundbreaking ceremony, dedication ceremony, or similar occasion involving a public works project. If we determine that a groundbreaking or dedication ceremony for a public works project serves a legitimate public purpose, we may elect to fund such a ceremony. We may plan and pay for the ceremony. Alternatively, we may include the ceremony-related services in the construction bid specifications for the public works project.
2. You may not accept food, beverages, or gifts at any groundbreaking ceremony, dedication ceremony, or similar occasion involving a public works project if the food, beverages, or gifts are paid for or subsidized by a person or entity who falls within the scope of Section IA, above.

B. Exceptions

None.
